Mitgie,the Hadsel Island, part of the Lofoten Islands,is normally bound by Ice and snow. There are huge Mountains that surrounds the coves and the sea.The soil is fertile, food is abundant and fish easily caught in spite of the short summers and the long winters. The Lofoten Islands including Hadsel is the center of the worlds largest fish industry in which 50,000 are employed. On the Hadsel Island is the most modern fish treating plant in the world and another plus is that they grow large crops of potatoe's.
My wife is a descendant of Hadsall, Hadsell & Hadsoll some of the clan changed the name] as her Grandmother was Martha L Hadsall and she was prsented a copy of Willard Hadsall's book "for a Thousand years" in 1957 by Willard himself during a family re-union. The James-James Line 310 JAMES HADSELL of New London, Connecticut, was the progenitor of the James Hadsell Jr. families that settled in the northwestern part of the state. The first record that we have found of James Hadsell is that of his marriage to Patience (Hempstead) Ross, 7-6-1721. She was the widow of Thomas Ross, whom she married 9-29-1715, and who died 7-19-1719. She was the daughter of Joshua and Elizabeth (Larrabee) Hempstead, and sister of Joshua Hempstead, the diarist, of New London.

Patience (Hempstead) (Ross) Hadsell died 8-9-1725. The dairy of Joshua Hempstead records each of these events with dates as given herewith. Throughout th dairy the name is spelled (Hodsell", which leads us to believe that the name was pronounced with a broad "a", thus giving the sound of "o" as in the word "odd."

. After the death of his first wife, Patience, James Hadsell married at Saybrook, Connecticut, Lydia Post, dau of Abraham and Elizabeth Sterns Post. The marriage is recorded in the Saybrook Vital Records, but the date is obliterated. We know that it was before 7-13-1726, for on that date Joshua Hempstead records in his dairy: "Brother Hodsell and his wife came."

James Hadsell was a sea captain, and believed to be a man of considerable wealth. In Joshua Hempstead's diary there are references to "Brother Hodsell" fitting out ships to go to Boston, Newport and other costal ports.

In 1722, "I sent Brother Hodsoll in the scow to deliver in the boat for Norwich, (Conn.) hhd. Rum, Small hides, hhd. Molasses and bbl. of sugar. I sold 2 bbls of pork to James Hodsoll at Boston prices, 5 lbs. per bbl. and "8-11-1730, I went on board with Brother Hodsoll who is loaded with 1,000 planks, 2, 2½, and 3 inch planks, and 2,000 staves bound for Boston." and "3-14-1731, brother Hodsoll came home from Boston yesterday." "11-19-1728, Brother Hodsoll came last night and lodged here, and in the morning we went on board Stephen and helped them sail for Newport." "7-1-1728, I was in town most all day with Brother Hodsoll buying 13 head of his sheep for 90 lbs."

The land records show this James Hodsoll buying and selling many parcils of land in New London, Saybrook and Killingsworth. On January 1, 1736 he sold for 172 lbs. current money all his land and "mansion house thereon" in New London to Joshua Hempstead, and this is the last record we have found anywhere of this James Hodsoll. Tradition handed down relates that he went to England in that year to settle an estate, and was lost at sea. So firmly was this believed that almost a hundred years later his descendents made efforts to find this inheritance.

On January 23, 1736 the diary records "Sister Hodsoll and family goes to Saybrook; removed by water," to the home of her parents.

James Hodsoll and his wife Lydia (Post) Hodsoll had:

Issue (5) (Hadsell) PATIENCE, whose funeral was held 10-20-1729, age about 3 years; LYDIA, no further record found, Patience date of birth unknown, married as his (2) wife Jedidiah Pierson 10-25-1968(Killingsworth Vital Records). He was the grandson of Abraham Pierson, first president of Yale College; ELIZABETH, baptized 8-26-1733 (Joshua Hempstead's Diary) married 10-26-1752 Timothy Mix (Annals of Newington); JAMES, born at Saybrook 7-5-1736 (Saybrook Vital Records), married Hulda Joyce. Removed to Farmington, Conn., and resided in the section which in 1785 was set off as the town of Bristol. He died there 8-31-1805, aged 69 years.

In going to England, I found that the Captain James, the sailor that shows up in New London, Conn., in 1721 is the James mentioned in the will of Captain James, commander of his Majesties Ship Squirrell, and described as follows: "Unto my nephew James Hodsoll, son of my brother William Hodsoll, deceased, all such wages and table moneys as shall become due to him for the time he shall be with me as a volunteer in her Majesties Ship Squirrell, aforesaid." This will was probated March 18, 1710, and this young James shows up in New London about 1720 and is the father of the James; James; James line so prolific in America. His name was always spelled Hodsoll in New England.

311-310 JAMES HADSELL (James), b 6-5-1736 at Saybrook, Conn., died 8-30-1805 at Bristol, Conn., and buried in the North Burying Ground. He m 6-5-1736 Hulda, dau of Abel and Joanna Beulah Royce (Killingworth Records of the town).

The 1790 census of Bristol town, Conn., lists James Haddfull with four males over 16 (including himself) and 2 males under 16, and 5 females (including his wife).

French and Indian War Records from 1755 to 1762 lists this James Hadsell serving on active duty as follows: on the rolls of the Connecticut men; in the campaign of 1757 he served with the men from Farmington, in Capt. Pettibones Co., at Fort

"HADSELL THE COPPER SMITH." Copper was discovered late in the 18th century, through green colored water flowing from a spring on the farm of this James Hadsell. The following quotation is from an old history of Bristol, Conn., enlisted "In Olden Times" at New Cambridge as it was first called, describing a picture of James Hadsell's place.

"Outside the Skibbereen bars or entrance to the copper mine the road turns to the south for a short distance. At the bend facing the east, the last of the three larger houses built by James Hadsell and his son James Jr., stood for many years. On page 228 is a map locating Hadsell's Copper Shop, with the notation, "Blacksmith Hadsell worked the mine smelting the oar in his forge," and also locating "James Hadsell's Sr. place."

"THE WILL" of this James Hadsell was probated at Bristol 9-9-1805. The following quotations from it are interesting:

"In the name of God, Amen.; I, James Hadsell of Bristol in the Co. of Hartford, Conn., although laboring at present under some indisposition of body, yet being of sound and disposing mind, memory and understanding, through the mercy of God, do make and ordain this my last will and testament in manner and form following:

"First and principally I resign my soul with the utmost humility into the hands of Almighty God, my creator, humbly hoping for a blessed immortality through the merits and mediation of my blessed Savior and Redeemer Jesus Christ; and my body I desire may be decently buried at the descretion of my executors, that I shall in this testament hereafter name; and as for such temporal estate as the Lord in his great goodness and mercy hath entrusted me to be the steward of:———

"I give and bequith to my dear and beloved wife Hulda, the use and improvements of one-third part of my estate I die possessed of, during her natural life." The rest he destributes to the following named children; "To my daughters, Ruth, Mary, Hulda and Rebeckah, I also give and bequith to James and my other five sons, John, Mark, Ira, Luke and Dan the remainder of my estate."

Mark and Ira are appointed executors, and an inventory includes: "The Dwelling House, Oxen, Cows, Sheep, Shotgun, Saddle Bags, The Blacksmith Shop, and the farm."

Politically they are unanimous on the subject of Liberty and Humanity. Our country here gives all the right of freedom, for the discussion of all principles, whether religion or political. Rev. James Hadsell, deceased, was the second minister of the Disciples church in DeKalb County. He was born in Broome County, N. Y., Feb. 28, 1813, a son of John and Abigail Hadsell. When he was a boy his parents moved to Trumbull County, Ohio, where he was reared on a farm, receiving his education in the district school, and by studying in his leisure hours when his services were not required on the farm. He began teaching school when a young man, at a time when he received $10 a month for his services. He was married March 12, 1835, to Mary A. Abel, who was born in Trumbull County, Ohio, Aug. 21, 1813, a daughter of Daniel and Sally (Root) Abel. In 1836 they moved to DeKalb County, Ind., and entered eighty acres of Government land in Concord Township, where they lived thirty years. A short time after his settlement in the county he was licensed to preach in the Disciples church, and the rest of his life was an active worker in the cause of Christianity, traveling over DeKalb and adjacent counties for about forty years. He held many offices of trust and responsibility, and at one time represented his county in the Legislature. To him and his wife were born eight children —Byron A., Orlina E., Marshall D., Austin A., Maria M., Carson C., Eveline S. and Camillus J. Mr. Hadsell died March 6, 1876.

Benjamin Hamilton was born in Franklin County, Pa., Dec. 6, 1845, a son of Edward and Rebecca (Bishop) Hamilton. His father died before his birth, and he lived with his grandfather Bishop, till eight years of age, when his mother moved to Adams ounty, Pa., where he lived till seventeen years of age. When twelve years of age he began to assist his mother in the maintenance of the family. In 1863 they moved to DeKalb County, Ind., and settled in Concord Township. His mother now lives in Hicksville. November, 1864, he enlisted in Company A, Thirteenth Indiana Infantry, and participated in the battles of Fort Fisher and others of less importance. He was discharged in October, 1865, and returned to Allen County, thence to DeKalb County, where he has since followed agricultural pursuits. In 1872 he sold his farm in Concord Township,

In 1854, anti-slavery parties were forming in many northern states in opposition to the Kansas Nebraska Act of 1854. While many of these state parties adopted the name "Republican", the Ohio convention adopted the name "Fuusionist" or "Fusion Party". (Wikipedia)

Obituaries
Elder James Hadsell
"The readers of the Christian Standard have already been appraised of the death of our beloved brother in Christ and fellow laborer in the gospel, Elder James Hadsell, of Waterloo, Ind.
He was, however so widely known and so greatly esteemed as a faithful minister of the New Testament, that a more extended notice of his life and death will, no doubt, be looked for by the brethern.

Notes (con't)

James Hadsell is beloved for his work's sake, tenderly rememberd for qualities of character which marked him as a rare and noble man. He was born in the State of New York, Feb. 25, 1813. While he was yet young, his father moved with his family to Trumbull Co., O., where he continued to reside until the summer of 1836, when having married Miss Mary Abels, and having already confessed and obeyed the Lord Jesus Christ, and begun the proclamation of the primitive gosel, he, with his young wife, removed to DeKalb Co., Ind., whichh at that time was nearly a wilderness. He settled in Concord Township, Del, Ind., where he continued to reside until 1864.

On the 17th day of February, 1837, with ten others he assisted in organizing a Christian Church in that neighborhood, planting it on the divine foundation. That congregation is now nearly forty years old, and is now and has been, during all these years, a power in the community. It is the mother of many other churches in that section of country.

During Bro Hadsell's residence here he traveled extensively as an evangelist. Many of the churches in Northwestern Indiana, Southern Michigan, and Nothern Ohio owe their existence to his faithful labors.

When the country was new, he would travel thirty, forty, fifty, and sometimes one hundred miles on horseback, hold a protracted meeting, gather a large number of happy converts into the chruch, and return home, receiving but the most meagre compensation for his labor.

Under his preachinng several thousands persons have been converted and became obedient to the Lord Jesus Christ.

He once represented his county in the State Legisllature, and in various ways has been honored by his fellow citizens considerably beyond the average lot of citizens. He was a strong anti-slavery man, when it was considered almost a crime to be an abolitionist. He was a consistent and earnest temperance man, pleading at all times and on all occasions for the suppression both of manufacture and sale of ardent drinks. He was a strong advocate of the Sunday-school, and worked most efficiently in it. and was very successful in bring(ing) many of the children to Christ.

He was an uncompromising advocte of co-operation for missionary work, and rejoyced in every effort our people made either for home or foriegn missions. He was as true to the gospel as the needle to the pole. He had no compromise at all with sin or error in any form, beliving that the gospel is the power of God unto salvation to every one that belivieth. He greatly desired to have our churches co-operate to send the pure, sweet, simle gospel of Christ to the nations of the earth, and nothing gave him greater pain than the opposition of a few, calling themselves brethern, to our missionary work.

He frequently attended our county, district, State and national missinary convensions; and his wis consels will not soon be forgotten by the brethern who were permitted to listen to him in those conventions.

In 1864 he removed to Kendallville and took charge of the church there. He remained there until 1871. During his stay at Kendallville the church increased in numbers, in piety and in influence, until it became a power in the place. In 1871, he was called to the pastorate of the church in La Porte. His labors in La Porte were greatly blessed, but being urged by the missionary board to take charge of the mission at Waterloo City, he consented to do so, and in 1872, removed to the latter place, where he continued to live until the Msster called him to the better land.

He was the father of eight children--all living, and all honored members of the church of Christ.

Thirteen years ago, in the providence of God, the writer accidently became acquainted with him. For many years we were together much of the time holding protracted meetings. We have wept and rejoyced together. We have read God's word and prayed together, and together our hearts have leaped with joy as our ears have been asllluted with the songs of the new born converts lisping forth the praises of their divineRedeemer. We loved each other as David and Jonathan did, and the writer of these lines has thanked God a thusand times that he ever became acquainted with James Hadsell.

A short time previous to his death we visited him and spent three days with him. He was trembling on the brink of theriver of death, expecting at any moment to be called over. He was full of faith and hope, ready, yes, anxious to hear the summons . Many and beautiful were his words of aith and trust in Jesus.

When he requested me, if possible, to attend and preach his funeral, he requested me to say to the people that in the dying hour he had no doubts atall as to the reality of our holy religion, nor as to the correctness of our plea as a religious people. "Tell them," he said, "that during my life I have done the best I could, but that I am not trusting in anything I have done for my salvation. I am trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ. I expect to stand complete in him, clothed with his righteousness." He died on Monday, March 6th, at 9 o'clock p.m. On the day before, which was the Lord's day, at his own request some of the brethern met at his house and attended to the soluemn institution of the Lord's Supper. After short services, and after he hhad eaten the loaf and drank of the cup for the last time, he made a farewell address to his family and brethren. His burning words of faith and hpe and love will never be forgotten by thosse who heard them. Then after singing a sweet song of Zion, he requested Bro. Kilby to pronounce the benediction.

He had his senses to the very last, and continued to express his confidence in Christ, until about ten minutes before he breathed his last, when at his request those present joined in singing "Nearer, my God. to thee, nearer to thee," and "Sweet by and by." At the colse of this beautiful hymn he said in an audible voice, "that will do," which were his last words. In about ten minutes after this, calmly and without a struggle he passed away. On the Thursday following, his remains were conveyed to his old home near Coburn's Corners, where his funeral was largely attended, by his old neighbors and brethern. The funeral serman was preached by the writer from words, "Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God." After the sermon, elequent and sympathetic words were spoken by Brethren Coburn, Sutton, Chapnmabn, Leavitt and Aylsworth, fellow preachers who had come to mingle their tears at this grave.

Perhaps some will think this notice too long. But to thousands, it will be felt to be far to meager; while to one precious circle, it will seem all imperfection. I dare not say how much I loved himj. In the language of another, "Let this and a thousand other precious memories be as seed sown, to spring up into a full harvest of joy and holy fellowship when the saints arise in the likeness of Jesus, who is our life and our everlasting hope."

Family Reunion
"A very pleasant event to the members of the Hadsell family, was their annual reunion which was held yesterday in J. W. Dill's beautiful grove, one mile south of this place. The day, which, in the morning, threatened to be stormy, was all that could be desired for an occassion of this kind, and long before the noon hour, over fifty members of this family had gathered in the grove to once more renew the ties of friendship and love.
Croquet grounds were laid off and swings put up and for both old and young the forenoon passed quickly away. Tables had been prepared and as 12;00 o'clock drew near the ladies began to unpack their numerous baskets and when their arrangements wee conpleted, the company was asked to partake of the many good things displayed. the bill of fare was varied and both the quality and quantity was such as to make the inner man rejoyce.
I. S. and C. J. Hadsell had placed a p[iano on the grounds and early in the afternoon a fine grogram, consisting of speeches, recitations, instrumental and vocal music was rendered. These events were held in honor of "Grandma" Hadsell's birthday, and although she was 92 years old on Monday, she was [present

Coburn Corners Church of Christ historical information. Author of sketch not given. One of the early ministers was James Hadsell.

"The life of James Hadsell is available in a History of DeKalb County published in 1885. ... it gives a brief sketch....Much of his work was done away from Coburn's Corners so that stories of his work and definite memories of him are not very common.
He was born in Broome County, New York, on February 28, 1813, the child of John and Abigail Hadsell. When he was a boy, his parents removed to Trumbull County, Ohio. Probably they settled in Bazetta since we first hear of him there.
He was probably converted there, although there is no record. He was already a Christian when he came to Indiana. His wife was a Baptist, and whether he had ever been of that faith can only be conjectured. He was fifteen when the Church of Christ at Bazetta was organized. The "History of the Disciples in the Western Reserve" does not list him as one of the members there but does state that he "orginated" there. He was probably a member of the Bazetta church and very likely of the Baptist church which preceded it. His first work was as a school teacher. He received ten dollars a month for his first salary, but he probably "boarded around." He came to Indiana in 1836 and stgaarted farming there. He had been married on March 12, 1835. It was interesting to note that the oldest son, Bryon, was the second white child born in DeKalb County. The feelings of his young wife, so far away from home at such a time, can only be imangined.
Hadsell was first of all a preacher and secondly a farmer. These active interests did not interfere with active work in other lines. He was a school teacher, served in the state legislature, and during the Civil War was active in the recruiting service, since he, himself, was neither young enough nor strong enough to serve otherwise.
He was a charter member of the church at Coburn's Corners and was the second man appointed as bishop. When we realize that he was the youngest married man in the beginning organization, we can see that he was a natural leader of men. the one church could not hold him. There are several records of removals by letter of him and his wifem, but the exact dates connot be determined. Once he removed to Trumbull County and later returned. He lived in Kendallville and served the church there. Later he organized a church in Waterloo and became its minister. At one time, in order to give his children the advantage of an academy education he moved to Newville and sent them to the academy founded and directed by Proffessor Faurot. He is credited with the organization of the church at Newville. The date of organization indicated that he did this while still a resident at Coburn Corners.
Death came to him while he ws in Waterloo, September 17, 1876. He was carried by his friends to the Alton Cemetery near his first Indiana home and there laid to rest.
He was the father of eight children. These children for a long time were influential in the church, particularly Byron, the eldest.
Those who remember him, testify that he was a preacher who could move ment to repentance. Evidently of a restless disposition, he was truly ambitious, desiring to serve his community, his church, and his country."

Family Reunion.

A very pleasant event to the members of the Hadsell family, was their annual reunion which was held yesterday in J. W. Dill's beautiful grove, one mile south of this place. The day, which, in the morning, threatened to be stormy, was all that could be desired for an occassion of this kind, and long before the noon hour, over fifty members of this family had gathered in the grove to once more renew the ties of friendship and love.

Croquet grounds were laid off and swings put up and for both old and young the forenoon passed quickly away. Tables had been prepared and as 12:00 o'clock drew near the ladies began to unpack their numerous baskets and when their arrangements were completed, the company was asked to partake of the many good things displayed. The bill of fare was varied and both the quality and quantity was such as to make the inner man rejoice.

I. S. and C. J. Hadsell had placed a piano on the grounds and early in the afternoon a fine program, consisting of speeches, recitations, instrumental and vocal music was rendered. These events are held in honor of "Grandma" Hadsell's birthday, and although she was 92 years old on Monday, she was present and celebrated the occassion by taking a nice swing, which she said she enjoyed very much, if she was not as young as she used to be.

At the business session, C. J. Hadsell was elected president for the ensuing year, and Ray H. Sheffer, secretary. The committee on program and arrangements are: Bert Hadsell, Fort Wayne; M. J. Hadsell, Hicksville; Cad Shull, Hall's Corners; I. S. Hadsell, Mrs. Lina Knight and the president and secretary.

Those in attendance from a distance were: Mrs. C. M. Thayer, Mrs. Kathryn Perry and C. F. Thayer, of Worcester, Mass., Lewie Lake and daughter Musie, of Stetson, Mich., Miss Mary Flint, of Toledo, O., Mr. Bert Hadsell and family, and Mrs. Emily Hadsell and daughter Emma, of Fort Wayne, and M. J. Hadsell and family, and Mrs. B. A. Hadsell and son Charles, of Hicksville, Ohio.

was well nigh perfect. All credit must be given Miss Peterson for her excellent work in our public schools. The other musical number was a selected solo by H. C. McClung, whose reputation as a cultured soloist was well sustained last evening.

The address of the evening was delivered by Dr. E. B. Bryan, president of Franklin College. He is a scholar and a ripe and good one too, and with the vigor of his robust manhood he delivered a forceful address that will do good in Auburn. While he made no attempt at flights of oratory he had and held the attention of his audience. And his address was the subject of much wholesome comment from those who heard him. Stated in its lowest terms he spoke on the requisites for a successful career—a subject of vital importance to young people about to start the race. His first proposition was that neither luck or brilliancy alone, would win success. Discussing this general truth Dr. Bryan cited that great leader of the colored race, Booker T. Washington. If luck ever entered into his life, he was born a slave and so reared and educated. His brilliancy never won for him his place as an educator and leader of world-wide fame. It was hard work and his disposition in the language of St. Paul "to do this one thing well." By way of contrast Dr. Bryan told of the career of a young man who graduated from Franklin college years ago with the reputation of being brilliant. The college records show that he led his class in Latin four years, in Greek three years, in chemistry two years and in history three years. After graduating from college the young man entered a profession. Relying on his brilliant mind he showed no disposition for hard work and close application and the verdict of the world today is that his career is not successful.

The speaker then spoke on the necessity of enthusiasm and special training for a successful life.

Supt. Hippensteel presented the diplomas to the graduates in a thoughtful heart-to-heart talk with his students. He told them that the diplomas he was about to present them were but symbols; that they in themselves had nothing of merit; that the thing of real worth was that they had accomplished what they had set out to do.

And thus ends another successful

REVIVED MEMORIES

Of the Days of '61 in a Visit to Kendallville.

(Kendallville News.)

Samuel Shook, of Corunna, passed the night here at the home of his nephew, William Shook, and this morning, while waiting for the east bound train to take him home, stood looking at the west side of town as seen from the depot.

The view recalled memories of other days, and he said: "Things look changed over there since we boys were in camp on that spot in the early days of the civil war. My regiment, the 129th Indiana, laid there for a long time waiting to be sent to the front.

"My colonel, Charlie Zollinger, of Fort Wayne, was one of the best officers I ever knew. Many a time on the march I have seen him get off his horse and let one of the boys who was about done up ride it. I have never attended any of the encampments, but I guess I will go to Fort Wayne and see the old boys once more, and then I will be ready to answer the last call at any time."

Mr. Shook was twenty-four years old when in camp here, and has a large circle of acquaintances, having spent his life in this vicinity.

Aged Resident Dies.

The ranks of the pioneers of DeKalb county are rapidly being decimated, the latest to pass to his reward being James H. Abel of St. Joe, whose death occurred at his home there Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock. Deceased had passed the age of four score years and was one of the early settlers of Concord township, locating there in 1837.

His aged wife died one week previous. Mr. Abel leaves two children, Freeman Abel and Mrs. Ida Andrews, both of whom reside in Concord township.

James and Mary Hadsell

About 1826 when James Hadsell was a young boy, his family moved from Broome, County, New York to Trumbull County, Ohio, and settled on a farm in Bazetta Township. In addition the farm, his father, John, also owned and ran a sawmill and a gristmill. Here James helped on the farm, and probably the mills. James received his education at the district school, and studied in his leisure hours, when his help wasn't needed elsewhere. James was "small in stature and frail in body," but what he lacked in physical strength, he made up for in energy, a sharp and intelligent mind, and persuasive speaking skills. He began teaching as a young man and soon become a licensed minister in the fundamental church.

In March of 1835 James married Mary Ann Abel, the daughter of early settlers in Trumbull, Daniel and Sally Abel. September of 1836, James and Mary, and several other families from Trumbull moved across the state of Ohio and settled on 80 acres of land in DeKalb County in what would later become Concord Township. There he cleared away timber and a built a crude cabin without doors or windows. Two months after the move Mary gave birth to their son, Byron, on the 18th of November. They faced the coming hardships and dangers with courage and fortitude. Eventually the temporary cabin was replaced with a more comfortable home and the farmland cleared and developed.

In addition to his farm responsibilities, James traveled extensively, by horse if necessary, throughout the area. He was instrumental in establishing and organizing many small churches in such places as Newville, Butler, Waterloo, Kendallville, LaPorte as well as in parts of Michigan and Ohio. James was an earnest and verbally persuasive speaker in his preaching. He was " clear reasoned and forceful in argument." Many of his meetings were protracted and exhausting, but he was made joyful by the number of converts.

James had strong and dedicated personal faith and was consistent and steadfast in his beliefs. He was an outspoken "anti-slavery man, when it was considered almost a crime to be an abolitionist" and was a "consistent and earnest temperance man." Not only was James dedicated to helping his fellow man with his religious activity, he also participated in his community by filling several positions of trust. He was a township trustee and a state representative in 1854-1856. He died at the age of 68 years.

Mary Ann Hadsell, wife of James, was a loyal and dedicated woman, who cheerfully fulfilled her duties as a wife and mother of nine children, eight living and one having died in infancy. She had the inner strength to endure all the physical and mental hardships of moving and was dedicated to establishing a new home in the wilds of Indiana. Mary was supportive of her husband and assisted him in every way she could. In addition to her household duties she had the responsibility of looking after the work of the farm while her husband was frequently absent with his missionary work. She industriously worked early and late to meet the demands of her large family. She was conscientious and resourceful in taking care of her family and she always had a "cheerful, sunny disposition and was the light of the home and breathed a welcome to all who entered its portals." Mary lived many years after the death of James. She died at the age of 94 years.

James and Mary Ann (Abel) Hadsell

I'm Mary Ann Hadsell.

My husband, James, was born in Broome Co., NY, on 28 Feb. 1813, to John and Abigail (Bray) Hadsell.

When James was a young boy, the family moved to Trumbull Co., Ohio. His father owned a sawmill and gristmill. James helped him there as well as on the farm. He received his education at the local schools. James was "small in stature and frail in body" but what he lacked in physical strength he made up for in energy, a sharp and intelligent mind and persuasive speaking skills. He taught school for $10 a month, as well as becoming a licensed minister in the fundamental church.

My parents were early settlers in Trumbull. I was born there to Daniel and Sally (Root) Abel on 21 Aug. 1813 and lived there until my marriage.

James and I married on 12 March 1835. The following year we moved to De Kalb Co., along with other families. We arrived on Sept. 1836 and settled on 80 acre farm near what would become St. Joe. It was difficult traveling, for I was pregnant with our first child Byron, who was born two months later in De Kalb on 18 Nov. 1836. We had to clear the our land to build a rough log cabin which had no windows or door. We covered the door with quilts or with whatever we could find to keep out the cold and animals. There were still Indians and wolves in the area. We endured a hard life for many years as we developed our farm & built a better home. Through those years we added to our family with 9 children born; 8 living to adulthood. I always kept my faith and maintained a cheerful attitude, and I support James in his calling.

James was one of the first ministers at the Coburn Corners church which was established about 1837. He was a dedicated evangelist and traveled on horseback to other communities to help organize new churches or to help others grow through protracted revival meetings. Newville, Butler, Cedar Lake, LaPort, Kendallville, Waterloo and places in lower Michigan, and Ohio were serviced by him. James was involved in other community, had stock in the Newville Academy, business and he was an abolitionist and belonged to the Fusion party, representing De Kalb Co at the state legislature from 1854 to 56. He was a recruiter during the Civil War and served in as a township trustee.

While he was gone my children and I took care of the farmstead. Later when they were older I moved with James to several towns. Later in our life, we moved from Kendallville to Waterloo about 1874.

James died in our home there on 6 March 1876 and was buried here in Alton cemetery.

After his death I went to live with my youngest son, Camillus, near Hicksville, Ohio, where I died on 16 Feb. 1908 at the age of 92. I am buried here next to my husband. We are surrounded by many of our family, friends, and neighbors.

preaching where opportunity afforded. During the seven weeks period he received in money thirty-five cents or five cents a week. The explanation is there was no money. It was at the sacrifice of such men that the gospel was spread in those times.

JAMES HADSELL

GGF

James Hadsell, the second of the ministers of this infant congregation was 23 years old when he came to Indiana and was already a baptized believer. He had been a school teacher in Ohio with the magnificant salary of $10 a month. He did follow that profession but became a farmer as well. He had been married in Ohio in March 1835 and his oldest son, Byron, was the second white child born in the county. Although James Hadsell was a preacher and a farmer, these active interests did not interfere with other lines of work. He taught school, served in the state legislature and was active in recruitment during the Civil War. He was a natural leader of men. The one church could not hold him. There are several records of removals by letter of him and his wife but the exact dates cannot be determined. Once he removed to Trumbull County and later returned. He lived in Kendallville and served the church there. Later he organized a church in Waterloo and became its minister. At one time in order to give his children the advantage of an academy education he moved to Newville and sent them to the academy founded and directed by Faurot there. He is credited with the organization of the church at Newville. The date of organization indicates that he did this while still a resident at Coburn Corners. (His home was located where Ted Hansen now lives)

Death came to him while he was in Waterloo, Sept. 17, 1876. He was carried by his friends to the Alton Cemetery near his first Indiana home and there laid to rest. He was the father of eight children. Those who remember him testify that he was a preacher who could move men to repentance. Evidently of a restless disposition, he was truly ambitious - desiring to serve his community, his church and his country.

JOHN F. COBURN

The third minister of the Church of Disciples was John F. Coburn, who with his brother, Asher and their families came to Indiana early in 1836. John F. was 30 years of age at that time.

There is no record of his education or even of any movements except that from a paper, he states that he was a resident in Warren in 1828 where he was running a shoe shop. It is probable that he was apprenticed there. When Walter Scott made his famous "seige of Warren" he was present. In this manuscript written in 1876 he tells of his vivid memory of the long, bony hand of Walter Scott as he told on his fingers the "steps to conversion". Thus, he was a part of the unfolding drama of the beginning of the "current reformation". His first reaction was that Scott was preaching dangerous doctrine.

In 1836 he came to Indiana and entered the farm one-half mile west of the Coburn Corners Church. He was a charter member as we have noted. When the county was organized he was elected clerk and recorder and for a time lived in Auburn, although he seems to have retained his membership in the Coburns Church. In 1842 he resigned and returned to the farm. With the exception of a temporary residence in Trumbull County, he lived in the neighborhood until

Preface

The original 1840 Federal Population census schedules for Indiana are filed at the National Archives in Washington, D. C. It has been reproduced on 27 rolls of microfilm. These reels of microfilm can be purchased from the Archives.

The 1840 census gives only the name of the head of household. Other members are listed by males and females into 5-year age groups under 20 and 10-year groups over 20. Pensioners are also indicated.

This index was prepared by the staff of the Genealogy Division of the Indiana State Library from the microfilmed copies of the 1840 census of Indiana. Many pages of the film were dim and the interpretation of names difficult, resulting in possible errors. Special credit is given to Mrs. Ruth Slevin who did most of the original transcribing from the film.

Columns indicate the head of household, county of residence, and page number of microfilm where the original enumeration is recorded.

A handsome frame building was erected on the banks of the St. Joseph River by A.C. Stone at a cost of $1350. The first classes were held in the fall of 1855.

A dormitory building was built adjacent to the school to house students from out of town. The academy drew many rural students and attained an excellent reputation. The name of the institution was apparently changed to Newville was one of the pioneer settlers of Concord township. He was born in Ontario county, New York, July 22nd, 1806. When he was ten years of age his parents moved to Trumbull county, Ohio, where he obtained a practical education in the public schools of that county. He came to Concord township, DeKalb county, and entered one hundred and twenty acres of land March 1st, 1836. At the first election held in DeKalb county, in July, 1837, at the home of Washington Robinson, in Vienna, he was elected county clerk and recorder. This was before the organization of DeKalb county and while what is now Stafford, Newville, and Concord townships was one organization and called DeKalb township. The county was organized and an election held the following year.

Vienna Academy was later called Newville Academy and Faurott Academy. It later became a Newville Township school.

JOHN F. COBURN

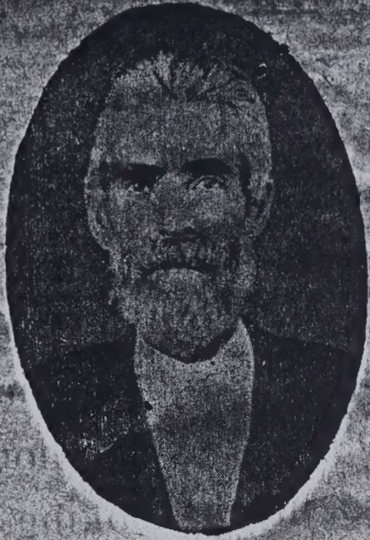
Mr. Coburn was a man of strong convictions and always ready to defend any cause he held to be right. During his life he took an active interest in religious and educational affairs.



ELDER JAS. HADSELL.

MRS. MARY A. HADSELL.

Elder Hadsell, with his wife, came to this county, September 1, 1836, when he was 23 years of age, and entered 80 acres of land, west of Coburn's Corners, now owned by Thurman Shull. Here he cleared away the timber and erected a rude log house for a temporary home. In this house, without doors and windows, they lived for over a year, surrounded by Indians and sung to sleep by howling wolves. Small in stature and frail in body, what he lacked in strength, was made up for in energy. When quite young he commerced teaching school, which vocation he followed during the winter seasons. In this early day ten dollars per month, was considered good wages for a teacher. Early in life he became a christian and was a charter member of the church at Coburn's Corners, the first church of that brotherhood organized in the county. He was licensed to preach and to his death was earnest and faithful in preaching the word as he found it in the bible. As a minister of the Gospel, he traveled over most of the northern part of the state and part of Ohio, preaching the word in its purity and baptizing penitent believers. He was a clear reasoner, forceful in argument and an attractive speaker, and his labors were blessed with many converts. He served as a state legislator from this county in 1854 to '56. He died at his home in Waterloo, March 6, 1876, at the age of 63 years, and was buried in the cemetery, north of Coburn's Corners. DeKalb county is better for his having lived in it.

Mary A. Abel, daughter of Daniel and Sally Abel, was born in Trumbull Co., Ohio, August 21, 1813. She was united in marriage to Elder James Hadsell, March 12, 1835. In September of the following year she came to this county with her husband, cheerfully taking up the duties, and bravely facing the hardships and dangers incidental to life in a new country. The mother of nine children, who grew to manhood and womanhood, she worked early and late to meet the demands of her large family and the household cares. When it it remembered that all the cloth for the clothes of the entire family, was spun and wove and the garments made by the woman of the household, some conception of the work done by her will be realized. In addition to these duties, the frequent absence of her husband, whose calling as a minister and teacher, often took him from home, threw the work of the farm upon her. Willingly and cheerfully did she do her part. She became a member of the Christian church at Coburntown, shortly after its organization, and there-after assisted her husband in his labors in every way possible. Since the death of Mr. Hadsell she has resided with her youngest son, C. J. Hadsell, now living near the Coburntown church. The above picture was taken about 15 years ago. She enjoys good health for one of her age, 92 years, and is loved and respected by all.

CONCORD PIONEERS

The following list of the early settlers of Concord township, was kindly furnished by J.D. Leighty of St. Joe. It is no doubt somewhat incomplete but it is nearly full as he was able at present to make it. Errors and omissions can be corrected hereafter. We publish it, not only as an act of respect to the pioneers themselves, but to set the matter in motion, so that other townships may take steps to secure a full list of names in each. Listed are settlement dates and place of birth.

In August 1950, a Tomato Festival was held by the town of Butler at which The Butler Church of Christ had a booth. Keith Ulm, using a sewing machine from the Garment Factory, sewed people's names on hundred of banners, and 500 tracts were also distributed. in May 1951, Charles Willard was ordained to the ministry at the church. Calvin Murphy resigned May 29, 1951, which was to be effective August 1951. Harold McDole was called to the ministry in July of 1951. In July of 1952, Harold McDole resigned. A revival meeting was held in August of this year with Darris Hamilton and George Sherwood at his own electric organ. The organ was brought to the church for these services.

In September 1952, Mr. R. S. Rains was called to fill the pulpit with nearly 93% of the votes cast. In May 1953, a revival was held by Mr. and Mrs. Van B. Hanna.

In January 1954, a decision was made to enlarge the basement and install a new oil furnace, classrooms and a modern kitchen were to be installed. The work was started June 1, 1954.

In April of 1956 the congregation voted to accept Donald Bullock as the minister. He came to serve on the second Sunday of June 1956. In August 1957, Don Bullock presented his letter of resignation in which he stated that he planned to go to prepare himself as a medical missionary. Jack Fawley was called to be the new minister in October 1957. A special building program was started on Easter Sunday, 1958.

In March 1967, an ordination service was held for elders and deacons. A pre-revival parade was presented on a Saturday morning in April, preceding our revival meeting with one of our Timothies, Walter C. Smith, as Evangelist. The Cincinnati Bible Seminary presented a program in May. Walter and Eddie Smith and family left for West Africa on September 19, 1967. On August 8, 1969, papers were signed by trustees, Alva Crabill, Carl Casebere, and Jerry Myers finalizing the purchase of the old Roan property at 205 West Oak Street as the new parsonage. In November, Don Kaufman was asked to serve as chairman of our church's centennial to be held the week of May 17, 1970. The theme was "A Century With Christ." Eighteen were added to the congregation during 1969.

The following have served as ministers of the Butler Church of Christ: James E. Harris (1870-1872), James Hadsell (1872-1873), Thomas P. Sutton (1873-1878), Elder Leavitt (1879-1880), O. Q. "In 1836, Bro. Alton moved to DeKalb County, Indiana. There he displayed the same zeal which had warmed his own heart and melted the hearts of others. Suffering all the hardships of pioneer life in a densely wooded country, contending with marsh and miasma, he still found time to preach the gospel and plant churches."

In a sketch found in the history of the church by R. G. Coburn, it is indicated that after about ten years, Brother Alton moved to Michigan, but later came back to Indiana, where he died. His last home was on the banks of the Wabash where he and his wife lie buried. They died only a few days apart in 1847. Of a natural rugged constitution, the incessant labors for the gospel in connection with farming to support himself and family, undermined his constitution. Although he never removed from Indiana, he is known to have made a trip as far west as Nebraska as an evangelist.

As illustrative of the hard conditions under which these men worked, we relate a few stories of his life.

On one occasion, a young man approached him with a request that he perform a marriage ceremony. The young man had the girl but no money to pay the preacher. Like all other pioneers, money to him was almost a novelty. The young man suggested that he could bring a load of pumpkins for pay, as he had a fine crop of them. The ceremony was performed, and in the course of a few days the happy bridegroom brought the pumpkins.

It is told, on reliable authority, that he was seen on at least one occasion, while walking to a preaching appointment at Hicksville, Ohio, with his feet clad one in a boot, the other in a lace shoe. The journey was then perhaps ten miles because of intervening swamps. The shoe and boot were made on the old last, they would fit either foot. He explained that the mates were worn out. There is another tradition - that for seven weeks he journeyed from place to place living in various homes and preaching where opportunity afforded. During the seven week period, he received in money thirty-five cents, or five cents a week. The explanation is there was no money. It was at the sacrifice of such men that the gospel was spread in those times.

James Hadsell

The life of James Hadsell is available in a History of DeKalb County published in 1885. Like all these histories, it gives a brief sketch of his life, consisting of various dry facts, that leave the man totally unrevealed. Much of his work was done away from Coburn's Corners so that stories of his work and definite memories of him are not very common.

ENSLEY
LUELLA
REV. JOHN F.
COBURN
DIED

Grave of Rev. John F. Coburn.

He was born in Broome County, New York, on February 28, 1813, the child of John and Abigail Hadsell. When he was a boy, his parents removed to Trumbull County, Ohio. Probably they settled in Bazetta since we first hear of him there.

He was probably converted there, although there is no record. He was already a Christian when he came to Indiana. His wife was a Baptist, and whether he had ever been of that faith can only be conjectured. He was fifteen when the Church of Christ at Bazetta was organized. The "History of the Disciples in the Western Reserve" does not list him as one of the members there but does state that he "originated" there. He was probably a member of the Bazetta church and very likely of the Baptist church which preceded it.

His first work was as a school teacher. He received ten dollars a month for his first salary, but he probably "boarded around." He came to Indiana in 1836 and started farming there. He had been married on March 12, 1835. It was interesting to note that the oldest son, Bryon, was the second white child born in DeKalb

County. The feelings of his young wife, so far away from home at such a time, can only be imagined.

Hadsell was first of all a preacher and secondly a farmer. These active interests did not interfere with active work in other lines. He was a school teacher, served in the state legislature, and during the Civil War was active in the recruiting service, since he, himself, was neither young enough nor strong enough to serve otherwise.

He was a charter member of the church at Coburn's Corners and was the second man appointed as bishop. When we realize that he was the youngest married man in the beginning organization, we can see that he was a natural leader of men. The one church could not hold him. There are several records of removals by letter of him and his wife, but the exact dates cannot be determined. Once he removed to Trumbull County and later returned. He lived in Kendallville and served the church there. Later he organized a church in Waterloo and became its minister. At one time, in order to give his children the advantage of an academy education, he moved to Newville and sent them to the academy founded and directed by Professor Faurot. He is credited with the organization of the church at Newville. The date of organization indicates that he did this while still a resident at Coburn's Corners.

Death came to him while he was in Waterloo, September 17, 1876. He was carried by his friends to the Alton Cemetery near his first Indiana home and there laid to rest.

He was the father of eight children. These children for a long time were influential in the church, particularly Byron, the eldest.

Those who remember him, testify that he was a preacher who could move men to repentance. Evidently of a restless disposition, he was truly ambitious, desiring to serve his community, his church, and his country.

John F. Coburn

The third sketch is of John F. Coburn. He was born in Ontario County, New York, July 22, 1806. In 1816, his father moved to Trumbull County, Ohio, and settled there in Bazetta Township. The family, like that of the Hadsell's and Alton's, was of New England extraction.

He was baptized on January 22, 1820, and on January 26, with his brother, Asher W. Coburn, was accepted into the Baptist Church which was organized on the day of his baptism. His father, Asher Coburn, was the first deacon of the church.

There is no record of his education or even of any movements except that he was a resident in Warren in 1828. From his son, we learn that he was running a shoe shop there at a later time. He probably was apprenticed there. He was present when Walter Scott made his famous "siege of Warren." In his manuscript written in 1876, he tells of his vivid memory of the long bony hand of Walter Scott as he enumerated on his fingers the "steps of conversion."

Thus, he was a part of the unfolding drama of the beginning of the "current reformation." His first reaction was that Scott was preaching dangerous doctrine.

When DeKalb County was organized, John F. Coburn, was elected clerk and recorder and for a time lived in Auburn, although he seems to have retained his membership in the Coburn's Corners Church. This was in 1837. In 1842, he resigned and returned to the farm. With the exception of a temporary residence in Trumbull County, he lived in the neighborhood until his death, although he moved to the Coburn farm on which the church now stands.

His progress in the church is not given. In 1846 the revised roll lists his name first as "evangelist." There is no record of his appointment. It was probably after 1842, owing to his absence previous to that time. In 1865, he was appointed Elder. There is no formal record, although old residents declare he served earlier in this capacity.

He was married three times. First, to Minerva Trumbull on November 25, 1830. Three children were born to this union. Minerva Coburn died October 3, 1840. On July 11, 1841, he married Alzada Gay, who died March 28, 1850. After the death of his second wife, he returned to Trumbull County and there married a third time, on April 20, 1852. His third wife was Betsy Ann Wilmot. One son was born to this union, Wilmot P. Coburn.

Although he was expecting to return after a visit, he took his letter from the church and again joined in 1853 upon his return. He was then elected deacon and a little later renewed his license as an evangelist. He died in 1879.

Until his death, he lived on his farm north of the church. For a long time, he was a guiding spirit of the church and a friend to a whole neighborhood. He preached at the Corners, as there was opportunity, and at other points, in schoolhouses or churches within easy reach. He was never considered a forceful speaker from the standpoint of oratory. He was known to express regret that he had so little "moving power." One of his listeners stated that the best description of his preaching was that it was "illuminating." His illustrations were from the familiar life of the farm. He was noted for his eccentricities and loved by the community. His

The schoolhouses twenty years ago were all of logs, and inferior, yet schools were maintained about half of each year. The buildings of to-day are evidence of interest in education, and improved farm residences betoken a progressive population. Auburn Junction, the intersection of the several railroads, is a small village in the northwest corner of Jackson. It is prominently located, and, in time, may be of importance. All in all, the "State of Jackson" may well be proud of changes in lands, buildings and schools.

CONCORD TOWNSHIP.

Concord formed one of the three Congressional Townships primarily embraced in one civil township, and called "De Kalb Township." Its name was acquired in March, 1838, when it was organized as at present. The St. Joseph River flows with many a sweep and lineal stretch diagonally from the northeast to the southwest corners. In extent, it embraces thirty-six sections of land. Rich lands lie along the river bottoms, which vary in width from forty to eighty rods. The uplands are fertile, and well calculated for wheat growing. Good mill sites were afforded by the river, upon which two grist and two saw-mills were erected. Bear Creek, entering Concord from the northwest corner, flows through the center to the river. A saw-mill was erected near the center of the township on this stream, many years ago, and also one on the stream known as the "Twenty-six Mile Creek." In natural features, the township presented many advantages for settlement, and has been regarded as about the best in the county.

In 1835, of ten families settled in the county, nine were residents of Concord. Of these, we have spoken in "County History" as the pioneers of the county, notable for experience of hardships and incidents of flood and forest. We have also referred to the Coburn settlement, crowded for room and debilitated by sickness.. The adventure of Colin Robinson in 1833 is also known, and his bridal tour in 1837. Colin and Henry Robinson had intended to enter land in the winter of 1833, but were deterred by the scarcity of provisions. It is said, that when these travelers had crossed the river, anticipating a good warm breakfast at the cabin of Asa Lytle, they entered to find only children at home, and nothing edible but a rabbit; and, while cooking this, a cat ran away with a great portion. In the spring of 1834, Mr. Robinson entered the excellent land now owned by Jerry Andrews, just across the river from Orangeville, built a cabin, and, in January, 1837, moved in. It is on record that in November, 1836, he had, as proprietor, platted a portion of Section 12, and named the tract Orangeville. Here, in the spring of 1837, Platter and others opened the first store in the county. Among other settlers in Concord, were Gavin Hamilton, long known as owner of the Orange Mills; Lott Herrick, the first Probate Judge in the county; George Barney, Treasurer of the county for four years, now in Spencerville, a merchant; James Hadsell, Cornelius Woodcox, and R. J. Dawson. Hadsell was one of the most useful pioneers of Concord, filled several responsible offices, was a minister of the Disciple Church, was the main builder of the brick structure in Waterloo, where he died during the winter of 1877. Spencerville is a thriving village in the southwest part of the township. It was laid out by R. J. Dawson, and named after Isaac Spencer, his brother-in-law. Soper was the first to keep tavern, and Joseph E. Sawtell was the second to sell goods within the county. The village, though isolated, is thriving and enterprising.

NEWVILLE TOWNSHIP.

Newville is a fractional township, six miles in length and two and a half wide. The River St. Joseph crosses the northwest corner. The lands may have three classifications—the fertile river bottom, the oak-timbered wheat lands near the center, and the lands of beech and sugar at the south part of the township.

The pioneers of Newville were John Platter and Solomon De Long, who, adventuring in the woods in the summer of 1834, became bewildered, and encamped at the border of a prickly-ash swamp. Here they dug a hole for water, using their axes and hands, and the fluid was so heavily impregnated with the juices from the roots as to be scarcely drinkable, though impelled by thirst. The woods were alive with myriads of mosquitoes, which assailed the travelers incessantly, compelling them to cut bushes, whose green leaves served as a covering and protection.

Platter settled on the farm now owned by Aaron Allen, where he lived till within a few years, when he moved upon the farm next south

ELDER JAS. HADSELL.

MRS. MARY A. HADSELL.

Elder Hadsell, with his wife, came to this county, September 1, 1836, when he was 23 years of age, and entered 80 acres of land, west of Coburn's Corners, now owned by Thurman Shull. Here he cleared away the timber and erected a rude log house for a temporary home. In this house, without doors and windows, they lived for over a year, surrounded by Indians and sung to sleep by howling wolves. Small in stature and frail in body, what he lacked in strength, was made up for in energy. When quite young he commenced teaching school, which vocation he followed during the winter seasons. In this early day ten dollars per month, was considered good wages for a teacher. Early in life he became a christian and was a charter member of the church at Coburn's Corners, the first church of that brotherhood organized in the county. He was licensed to preach and to his death was earnest and faithful in preaching the word as he found it in the bible. As a minister of the Gospel, he traveled over most of the northern part of the state and part of Ohio, preaching the word in its purity and baptizing penitent believers. He was a clear reasoner, forceful in argument and an attractive speaker, and his labors were blessed with many converts. He served as a state legislator from this county in 1854 to '56. He died at his home in Waterloo, March 6, 1876, at the age of 63 years, and was buried in the cemetery, north of Coburn's Corner. DeKalb county is better for his having lived in it.

DAVID

Mary A. Abel, daughter of Danie and Sally Abel, was born in Trumbull Co., Ohio, August 21, 1813. She was united in marriage to Elder James Hadsell, March 12, 1835. In September of the following year she came to this county with her husband, cheerfully taking up the duties, and bravely facing the hardships and dangers incidental to life in a new country. The mother of nine children, who grew to manhood and womanhood, she worked early and late to meet the demands of her large family and the household cares. When it it remembered that all the cloth for the clothes of the entire family, was spun and wove and the garments made by the woman of the household, some conception of the work done by her will be realized. In addition to these duties, the frequent absence of her husband, whose calling as a minister and teacher, often tok him from home, threw the work of the farm upon her. Willingly and cheerfully did she do her part. She became a member of the Christian church at Coburntown, shortly after its organization, and there-after assisted her husband in his labors in every way possible. Since the death of Mr. Hadell she has resided with her youngest son, C. J. Hadsell, now living near the Coburntown church. The above picture was taken about 15 years ago. She enjoys good health for one of her age, 92 years, and is loved and respected by all.

James and Mary Ann (Abel) Hadsell

I'm Mary Hadsell.

My husband, James, was born in Broome Co., NY, on 28 Feb. 1813, to John and Abigail (Bray) Hadsell.

When James was a young boy, the family moved to Trumbull Co., Ohio. His father owned a sawmill and gristmill. James helped him there as well as on the farm. He received his education at the local schools. James was "small in stature and frail in body" but what he lacked in physical strength he made up for in energy, a sharp and intelligent mind and persuasive speaking skills. He taught school for $10 a month, and become a licensed minister in the fundamental church.

My parents were early settlers in Trumbull. I was born there to Daniel and Sally (Root) Abel on 21 Aug. 1813 and lived there until my marriage.

James and I married on 12 March 1835. The following year we moved to De Kalb Co., along with other families from Trumbull Co. We arrived on 1 Sept. 1836 and settled on 80 acres near what would become St. Joe. It was difficult traveling across Ohio, for I was pregnant with our first child Byron, who was born two months later in De Kalb on 18 Nov. 1836. He was the second white child born here. When we arrived we had to clear our land to build a rough log cabin which had no windows or door -- a gloomy, dark place to live with an infant child. We covered the door with quilts or with whatever we could find to keep out the cold and animals. There were still Indians and wolves in the area. We endured a hard life for many years as we developed our farm & built a better home. Through those years we added to our family with 10 children born; 8 living to adulthood. I always kept my faith and maintained a cheerful attitude through the hardships and always supported James in his religious calling.

James was one of the first ministers at the Coburn Corners church, which was established about 1837. He was a dedicated evangelist and traveled on horseback to other communities to help organize new churches or to help others grow through protracted revival meetings. Newville, Butler, Cedar Lake, La Port, Kendallville, Waterloo and places in lower Michigan, and Ohio were serviced by him. James was involved in other community activities -- had stock in the Newville Academy. He was an abolitionist and belonged to the Fusion party, representing De Kalb Co at the state legislature from 1854 to 56. He was a recruiter during the Civil War and served in as a township trustee.

While he was gone my children and I took care of the farmstead. Later when they were older, the farm was sold to son, Byron and Jonathan Shull. James and I moved with to Kendallville in 1866. About 1874 we moved from Kendallville to Waterloo. James died there in our home on 6 March 1876 and was buried here in Alton cemetery.

After his death I went to live with my youngest son, Camillus near Newville. We then moved to near Hicksville, Ohio , where I died on 16 Feb. 1908 at the age of 92. I am buried here next to my husband. We are surrounded by many of our family, friends, and neighbors.

SUMMARY OF HISTORY AND HERITAGE OF THE CEDAR LAKE CHURCH OF CHRIST

For some time prior to 1855 a few scattered Christians in the vicinity of Cedar Lake, feeling the need of a religious service, desiring to worship God and remember their Saviour, began meeting in various places. Sometimes they met in homes, sometimes in barns and sometimes the meeting place was a school house. The Clark school house was the first one used for this purpose. Later they met in the log school house at Hesse-Castle, then at the Cedar Lake school until a building was erected at the present site with completion in May of 1868.

The Church was partially organized on June 7, 1855, then organized in full on June 25, 1855 with a membership of 48 people. It was on this date after the organization was formed that an election of officers was held. Serving as shepherds of the flock were Elders, M.J. Boland, Wellington Farrington, William Brand and William Cox. Chosen as servants of the congregation in the office of deacon were Nathan Powell, Samuel Thomson and Joel E. Thomson.

These people, no doubt, enjoyed worshipping together as though they were meeting in the finest of buildings. Soon their vision grew to reach out and win other souls to Christ, They realized that they would soon be needing a building of their own and plans were begun to start work on a church house that was destined to serve the community for 106 years. The building was completed in May of 1868 with dedication in December 1868. The regular pastor at that time was Elder Hadsel. The carpenter work was done by Joel Thomson and Mr. Stage. We owe much to these pioneers of the faith as they labored together to build a lighthouse of faith in this community.

We have limited space here to relate incidents concerning the ministers who so faithfully served in adverse conditions. We urge you to refer to old church records for these details. Some drove horse and buggy from considerable distances to preach a morning and evening sermon with need to spend Saturday and Sunday nights with members of the congregation. These ministers prepared their sermons, traveled questionable roadways, often away from home three days to conduct a Lords Day service here, het received little pay. They accepted all or part of their pay in produce, grain, poultry and sometimes clothing.

The small, plain, white building erected in 1868 was so well constructed and maintained that it served this community until 1961 when there was need of a larger facility. It had served its purpose and stood proudly on the corner of the country roads, a memorial and testimony of faith and dedication to an earlier generation whose foresight and sacrifice we honor today.

To understand the effort and sacrifices put forth by this small congregation to maintain and update facilities to whatever needs arose, we must keep in mind their daily struggle was for necessities--not for luxuries as do we today. From small yellow kerosene wall lamps to a modern gas mantel lights hung from the ceiling, with supply tank and hand pump for keeping pressure available, requiring almost constant maintenance. It was approximately 1938 when electric lights were installed. The wood stoves on either side were replaced with a modern wood, coal burning furnace with only one register.

One needs only to read early record books to realize the sacrifices that were required d the donations were greater in comparison to today. It was the practice for many years commit themselves to a yearly amount so the Church could establish their budget. Some gave 10¢ per week, some as much as 20¢ per week. Some agreed to set aside $10.00 per year and others gave $1.00 per month. There are records of grain and produce as partial payment.

Often times the minister would serve two congregations when the modes of travel improved. Cedar Lake alternated with Corunna for a time. Hamilton also participated with us to share a minister. The early ministers received as little as $5.00 per week which was sometimes supplemented with produce and poultry.

Smoke pouring from the chimney early Sunday morning meant that Clarence King was there. The first bell would ring at 9:00 AM and with the absence of other sounds, the tones from that bell would be heard far and wide, for it said "This is the Lord's Day, Come!"

The Cedar Lake Church became widely known and respected by surrounding communities and area churches. When evangelistic meetings were held, they were well attended, as great effort was made for special music and numbers which resulted in slow but steady growth in membership. When our baptistry was no longer usable we went to Ashley, Angola or Waterloo Church in cold weather, In the summer Cedar Creek, Cedar Lake, Lake James or Pretty Lake was used for these services.

Childrens Day was always the first Sunday in June and required full cooperation from each child, parent and minister to provide the best program. It was not uncommon to set chairs in aisles and still have people standing along the walls. Adults of Cedar Lake also arranged many programs. One of the most memorable was "The Family Album" arranged by Francis Clark in which our ancestors were portrayed. Dressed in clothing from an earlier period, members posed within a large frame that was opened and closed as a book. This same frame was used in 1951 when Steven Foster songs were portrayed. This program was used as a fund raiser for the purchase of the electric organ. Summer picnics were an event that ny looked forward to each year.

One cannot read far in any old record book before learning of one group that worked so diligently and was always ready to help, The Ladies Aid. Many a late, worried board meeting ended abruptly when someone suggested asking the Ladies Aid to help with a difficult project. A long list of Sunday School projects , worthwhile and needed, lay dormant until the Ladies Aid could help. From Church materials to a leaking roof, their assistance knew no bounds. No progress or achievement could be realized without giving full recognition to this noble group of women, The Ladies Aid.

Our Ministers

No record has been kept of all of the separate ministeries. During the earlier years the ministers who came here were undergirded by the presence of James Hadsell or John F. Coburn or both. The latter was here during all the time until his death. When no one was serving the church, Coburn was always present with his high type of preaching. Later J. N. To the Ladies.

A clear skin and a bright complexion has a charm for all. How to obtain it, and how to keep it, is a secret worth knowing, and one long wished for by the fair sex. Cosmetics have their origin from this desire. They, by their external application, to a certain extent hide the defects and blemishes, only, but do not remove the cause. A worse condition of the skin and complexion than if nature had been let alone, follows their use. A clear skin and bright complexion can only be secured by a proper purification of the blood by and through the Kidneys—WAYNE'S DIURETIC will do this. Try it, and be convinced. 4w2

A Torpid System.

Sometimes, without any assignable cause, the physical strength and animal spirits give way, and a strange torpor falls alike on the body and intellect. There is little or no pain perhaps, but the natural vigor and elasticity of the nervous and muscular system seems to have departed, and an indifference to the pleasures of life, and even of its grave responsibilities, takes the place of that earnest interest in both which characterizes every well balanced mind when in a healthy condition.

This state of partial collapse it often the premonitory symptoms of some serious malady. It indicates unmistakably that the vital powers are languishing and need a stimulant. In such cases the effect of a few doses of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is wonderfully beneficial. The great tonic wakes up the system from its drowse. The secretions and the circulation receive a new impetus. The relaxed nerves recover their elasticity under the operasions of the specific, like the slackened strength of a musical instrument in the process of tuning. Lethargy and debility are replaced by energy and vigor, the spirits rise, and life that almost seemed a burden while the season of depression lasted, becomes once more enjoyable. That such a radical change should be produced by a remedy entirely devoid of the powerful alkaloids and minerals so extensively used in modern practice, may seem incredible to those who pin their faith on the medical efficacy of active poisons, but if these skeptics will take the trouble to enquire of those who have tested the corrective and alterative virtues of the Bitters under the circumstances described they will find the statement to bb true

Coburn Corners Church of Christ

This is the history of the Church of Christ at Coburn Corners. It was written by John F. Coburn for the Reunion held February 17, 1876.

Sometime in the year 1835, Elder Benjamin Alton of Trumball County, Ohio, made his way to northeastern Indiana and entered 40 acres of land near the Saint Joseph River, land that is now a part of the farm H.H. Hoisington (Roy Maxwell Home.)

About this time or soon afterwards, Asher W. Coburn and John F. Coburn, two brothers, also of Trumbull County and acquaintances and religious associates of Elder Alton, found they had only a few hundred dollars each, so they determined to try their fortunes in a country of cheap homes.

Asher first rode throught the country, returned, and reported there was plenty of land to be had directly from the U.S. government at $1.25 per acre. They loaded lumber wagon with goods, attached two yoke of oxen, while their father with his two-horse wagon took the two families of a wife and three children each and additional goods and they started west.

The journey began late in January and ended early in March of 1836. It was a trip of about 250 miles. Their success was soon known back home and others followed, among them the two Abels, Homer James Hadsell, Samuel Headleys and others. Before the fall had far passed, Elder Alton was here with his family. The religious element in the society thus formed, was large and religious meetings soon started with Elder Alton, leader by common consent.

The meetings thus started have continued with very little interruption until the present time. They resulted in the formation of a church called the Church of the Disciples of Jesus Chris. The Christian Church is the name more generally used this time.

Lorenzo Alton came as a boy with the family. He had been baptised on a profession of faith in Christ. He joined the church but moved away when he grew up. He died Sept. 28, 1857.

Benjamin Alton Jr. was the second son of Benjamin and Fanny, and like his brother came to this place a Christian.

He became a man and married among us, to Sally Coburn and was for many years a help to the cause of Christ here and in Hicksville where he lived for several years. He enlisted in the Army and served about a year in the war of rebellion, then came home in 1865, and moved his family into Nowago County, Michigan, where he died in the year of 1875.

Nancy Babcock was the first of the 11 in the neighborhood. She was also from Trumbull County, Ohio, and came with her husband and family in 1835 and settled on the farm now occupied by Nelson Scholes, (Mr. Ward). It was on the low lands near the river, where they remained but a few years when her husband sold out and went out of the neighborhood and soon died. She married twice after that and some years later died.

James Hadsell was born Feb. 29, 1818. He came here in the early fall of 1836 and settled on the farm occupied by Jothab Shull (Mrs. Eva Shull). He brought with him his young wife but no children. In a little more than a year he was chosen as one of the church overseers and then soon after was chosen as an Evangelist, which is the last position he has ever occupied. After a few years here he obtained a range, visiting different parts of this state and other states the most of which time his family was here. In 1865 he moved his family to Kendallville in Noble County where he remained eight years.

The precise time in which this Church was organized has been a matter of dispute. Records says it was in February, 1836, but was an impossibility, as at that time, there was but one Church constituent in the county, Mrs. Nancy Babcock. If the Church was organized in 1836 it was late in the year but if it was in 1837 it was in February. This is probably the truth.

First members were Benjamin Alton, Fanny Alton, Lorenzo Alton, Benjamin Alton Jr., John F. Coburn and Minerva Coburn.

Benjamin Alton was born February 22, 1799 and joined the church at 38. He probably preached DeKalb County's first sermon, and this church was probably the first of any denomination here.

Without any mixture of human plans, with earnestness and energy he did not confine hinself to one location but went through out the area.

He did much to establish Christian influence in the northern Indiana and the adjoining parts of Ohio.

His stay was not lengthy. After 10 years he sold out and moved to Michigan. He later died on April 7, 1847, having survived his wife 14 days. His children have all at one time or another been members of this church.

Fanny Alton, wife of Benjamin Alton Sr., was his associate in all his cares and labors and was a woman of good character and intelligence. She possessed a happy faculty of expressing herself in writing and speaking. She accompanied him to Wabash and died March 23, 1847.

He once represented this county in the state legislature and in various ways has been honored be his fellow citizens to the extent considerably beyond the average lot of citizens.

His children have all obeyed the Gospel and all but one or two have at some time been members of this church. His wife came into the neighborhood as a member of the Free-will Baptist church but after a year or two gave her membership in with us and remains a firm Christian.

Samuel Healy, usually marked second, to seperate him from his uncle of the same name, came into the neighborhood some years later and was useful as a member of the church.

He came from Trumbull county, was a widower and an original member.

He taught school in the neighborhood in the winter of 1836 or 1837, probably the first school taught in the county. He was for several years a member, part of the time an overseer as will be seen in its proper place, but his location has been largely in Newville and places farther off so that we have enjoyed his society and assistance less than was desirable.

Asher W. Coburn is next on our list. While others moved from place to place, he never moved except from a poorer home to a better one on the same farm. His history and the church history are identical. Two years after the death of his first wife, he married Susan Shull, widow of the late Daniel Shull. His children early embraced Christianity and two retain their places. One is dead.

In the year 1872 while quietly husking corn in a shed, he was suddenly struck with paralysis and reached the house with difficulty. He rallied and was able to attend to his business for more than a year but on July 1, 1874 he was taken with a fever from which he could not be rallied. He lingered until July 10 and died.

Hannah Coburn, wife of Asher W. Coburn, shared largely in the hardships of a frontier life, she had poor health but great energy. She soon became known through the newly farming settlements as a woman of uncommon skills.

As there were no doctors, she traveled distances of 10 or 12 miles, and would never refuse.

She has been known to rise from a bed of sickness and ride several miles, wait on a patient, then return to the care of her own young family.

It seemed strange that she could endure so much, but she did. She was so keenly alive to the suffering of the afflicted that when she heard of them she could not rest until she was by their side administering to their wants and needs. She entirely forgot herself until they were relieved.

Through all this time that foul disease consuption was slowly but surely preying upon her, the time came at last when the relief she so often administered to others could not be administered to her. In September 1857 she died, as she had lived a good Christian,

Minerva Coburn is the next to mention her history, for she is so much like my own, that I approach it with delicacy. She was born Oct. 1, 1807, and was baptised about the time she was 21. She married Nov. 25, 1830. She shared with pleasure the hardsips of a frontier life, looking forward hopefully to the time when our little means would grow to a competence here, as they could not in an older country.

When I was called upon to take charge of the records of our county her quick discernment of legal matters were invaluable. But her career was short. In the fall of 1840, she, her husband and daughter were all suffering with chills and fever with no doctor, no nurse. A neighboring woman would leave her own family and run in for a minute or two and do what she could, then hurry back again.

Minerva was seized with conjestion of the brain. For this there is no help, and on October 8, 1840, she died. She was the first of the 11 to be called away to death.

It only remains to speak of myself. I was born July 23, 1806 and of course, shall have completed my 70 years next summer, if I live until that time. It was on the day that I was 13 and a half years old that I gave myself to God by a public profession of religion. My connection was with the Baptist. The reformation for which we plead had not then commenced; but when we moved to this place it was pretty well matured and firmly established.

To establish it in this place became the work of my wife, myself and our associated above mentioned. But changes awaited us of which we had no conception.

DeKalb county was the only name; it was not yet organized. An act for the purpose was passed the next winter. And in the summer of 1837 was carried into effect. I was called away from our church and home to take charge of the public records of the county or rather to establish such records, for of course I had to begin at the very beginning. There was neither book or building to begin with.

In the winter of 1841-42 I returned to the neighborhood and in the course of the year was chosen as overseer upon the resignation of James Hadsell. On February 9, 1856, I was called upon by the church to engage in preaching the gospel. This new responsibiltiy I found a heavy one and met discouragements and embarressments that I had not prepared for, and once or twice offered to give up the appointment; but being encouraged by the church I continued until this day, to labor as a field opens for me. My field has been a narrow one, laboring at home and in neighborhoods near, and leaving it to others to reach more extended lines.

The offices of the church; evangelists, bishops, elders, overseers and deacons.

Benjamin Alton came to this place already accredited as an Evangelist and he sustained that relationship while he remained with us.

I find no record of the time when James Hadsell was appointed to the work of and Evangelist but it must have been about the year 1839. His career has been sufficiently traced.

John F. Coburn was the third Evangelist; the second originally selected by this church. He was selected Feb. 9, 1845, being then in the 30th year of his age. "Beginning late I do not propse to retire early if God gives me strength and a field for activity."

Cyrus Alton, youngest son of Elder Benjamin Alton, was born January 4, 1835; baptised; appointed an Evangelist April 7, 1861, but he was very young and his appointment was limited to one year. The troublesome times followed, involved delicate and difficult questions. When the year was up it was thought that silence was the better course but on March 26, 1864 the appointment was renewed and made permanent. His career to this time has fully vindicated the action of the church. We cease to enjoy his society and labors but his name will ever be dear to his relatives by blood marriage and his many friends.

From the teachings of the New Testament we understand the office of Bishop, Elder and Overseer are one and the same office, that they belong to each individual church; that a fully organized church should have a plurality of them and it is found that in many churches frequent changes become a necessity.

In this church we found it a convenience to make the selection for a year at a time. Under these circumstances any extended account of the overseers and deacons would be tedious.

Nothing more remains but to give a general history of church progress and that can be done in a few words. Composed of young, earnest, inexperienced and impulsive persons, it is not surprising that at first they encountered difficulties and to some extent disagreements. It required time, painstaking to overcome; but they were overcome and for more than half of the last part of the time a continual course of peace and harmony and brotherly love has marked the career of the church.

'Tis true we have had our sorrows; we have had coldness and backwardness; we have seen members flagging and falling away and left more who could thoroughly fill their places; and death too, has done its part to rend the church as well as hearts. But we have seen blessings from heaven, too.

New recruits have come in to fill the place of those who have gone, and we start off on this centennial year of our nation's existence with cheerful hearts and joyous hearts and hopes of a continual usefulness and happiness.

During its existence this church has employed four different Evangelists from abroad to labor with us: Moses Bonham for two years; R. Ransom for one year; T. P. Sutton for two to three years; and R. Faurott for part of a year.

The members who have belonged to the church first to last is about 330.

The number now belonging is 103.

This ends the part written for the 1876 reunion.

The Alton family donated a plot of land on their farm which was to be used as a church yard and burial ground but when the infant congregation was able to build their first building, it was found the population center of the community had shifted south, so the Coburn family gave an acre of ground on the four corners, known as Coburn Corners.

The first building was humble (the doors faced south, one for women and children and the other for men). There were windows on the east and west sides and a small raised platform between the doors.

There was no basement or classrooms and heat was supplied by two stoves. A small steeple above the entrance doors proclaimed this to be God's house. Later the east door was closed and the platform extended to the east wall to make room for a choir. For several years only the pulpit and chairs were on the platform. The song leader used a tuning fork to get the starting tone for the hymns for many years. Later an organ was used.

This building served the congregation from 1861 to 1903 when it was extensively remodeled. The present church stands on the original plot and is called Coburn Corners Church.

There are now approximately 300 members. Some later ministers were Leslie Strong, David Hamilton, Walter Coburn, Carlton Curie, Wendel Hose.

Eva Shull mentioned in the history of the church was the mother of Mrs. M. E. (Doris) Stuck, a Garrett resident, and for many years a teacher in the public schools here. James Hadsell, one of the original founders of the church was Mrs. Stuck's great-grandfather.

Special appreciation is extended to Mrs. Stuck for use of the diary.

Fusion Party

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Fusion Party is a term that may have a variety of meanings in the political history of the United States.

The Fusion Party was the original name of the Republican Party in the state of Ohio. In 1854, anti-slavery parties were forming in many northern states in opposition to the Kansas Nebraska Act of 1854. While many of these state parties adopted the name "Republican", the Ohio convention adopted the name "Fusionist" or "Fusion Party", which they felt more accurately described the fusion of person from a variety of political backgrounds, including members of the Free Soil Party, the Conscience Whig Party, the Know-Nothing Party, as well as members of the Democratic Party who were opposed to slavery.

At other times, the term "Fusion" candidate did not refer to a candidate from a specific party, but rather represented an electoral technique in which a candidate was nominated by more than one political party. In the general election, people could vote for a candidate under their preferred political party. All the votes for a single candidate cast under different parties would be totaled, thus enabling smaller parties to sometimes defeat a larger party. Fusion candidates were common in the 1880s and 1890s. Many states have since passed laws prohibiting candidates from being listed on the ballot under more than one party. See electoral fusion.

INDIANAPOLIS

Throughout the 1850s a majority of Indiana's politicians continued to use African colonization as a palliative to salve their consciences about racism. Governor Joseph A. Wright summarized the thinking succinctly in his biennial message of 1855: "The scheme . . . is practicable, and no enterprise of the age holds out greater promise of good to the colored race."[47] An antislavery coalition that outnumbered Democrats 60 to 40 in the House in 1855 offered the most serious opposition of the decade to the race laws. This coalition charged that sending free blacks to Africa was a scheme that "originated in the basest motives and from the most mercenary considerations." These Fusionists, as they were called, urged that blacks should be educated in Indiana instead of colonized in Africa.[48]

As a general rule, however, majorities in both houses showed a consistent preference for colonization. At the long session of 1851-1852 an act designated the governor, auditor, and secretary of state as the state Board of Colonization. The bill also appropriated $5,000 to establish an Indiana colony in Africa and pay emigrants $50 each to cover expenses of the voyage. Soon the Indiana auxiliary became the Indiana Colonization Society with an agent, a black minister named James Mitchell, who drew his salary from the state fund. Subsequent appropriations increased the money to $15,000 and Mitchell submitted elaborate, detailed reports to sessions throughout the decade.[49] Blacks for the most part ignored the board although it kept a secretary until 1865. The ultimate irrelevance of colonization was shown by the fact that not a single application for emigration was received after 1856.[50]

Legislation regarding race clearly proposed to make Indiana a state without a black population by forbidding additional settlement and encouraging blacks already in the state to resettle in Africa. Antiblack laws barred black children from public schools, forbade blacks to testify in courts, and provided stringent penalties for miscegenation. As a result, black population increased by only 166 persons during the decade.[51]

The school law of 1852 intended to exclude black children from common schools but the provision was omitted because of an error by the enrolling clerk.[52] This error was rectified in 1855 by a law that expressly excluded the property of blacks from being assessed for school purposes and their children from being of both parties were "captivated . . . by the spells of his wondrous genius . . . ."[28] But the Irish in Indianapolis were not captivated by Kossuth; they viewed the revolutionist's attacks on the Austro-Hungarian monarchy as an attack upon the Catholic faith. In a letter to the State Sentinel the Irish threatened that Catholics would never vote for any man who supported the Hungarian or his doctrines.[29] Former Whigs such as Godlove S. Orth and Richard W. Thompson responded to the uproar over Kossuth by organizing Know Nothing lodges to "save" Indiana from Catholics and foreigners. These nativists allied with anti-Nebraska Democrats, temperance advocates, and antislavery men in the summer of 1854 to create a "people's movement." The coalition took the name Fusionists, but the machinery of Know Nothingism governed nominations, political organization, and the campaign.[30]

This "combined crusade of incoherent factions" swept the fall elections and the 1855 General Assembly became known as the Know Nothing legislature.[31] While the exact number of lawmakers "carried . . . by the ephemerate whirl wind" of Know Nothingism is unknown because the order was secret, the Fusionists included Speaker of the House David Kilgore and at least two dozen others.[32] In the Senate, Alanson W. Hendry proposed a board of visitation for "nunneries and secret religious schools." Hendry's board of "good and reputable citizens," which would free all persons restrained in convents, was defeated by a 27 to 23 vote.[33] Such proposals, when coupled with the passage of a prohibition law, led the State Sentinel to observe that the legislature was reverting to the "Quaker-hanging, Baptist-burning, ear-cropping days of Plymouth Rock . . . ." The newspaper sarcastically predicted that future generations would exclaim "blessed were our fathers, for, verily, they did all these things in the name of God!"[34] One Democrat concluded that his party was in a fight for survival with a "heterogeneous conglomeration of political treason[,] bigotry and fanaticism . . . ."[35]

Godlove S. Orth, state president of the Know Nothings, predicted in the flush of victory "that hereafter none but Americans in principle as well as by birth, shall rule America.''[36] His prognosis proved wrong, however, because Hoosiers quit the secret order in 1855 and 1856 as rapidly as they had joined. When the American Know Nothing party adopted proslavery resolutions at its national convention in 1856, leaders in Indiana deserted it for the new Republican party. This last grew out of the antislavery element in the ''people's movement'' of 1854 and made its presence felt at the 1855 session when the House passed several resolutions asking Congress to repeal the Kansas-Nebraska Act.[37] It took the name Republican in 1856 and the new party proved to be the most lasting fruit of Fusion.[38] In 1856 the party slated candidates for every state office and won five of the eleven congressional seats. At the 1857 session there were twenty-five Republicans in the state Senate. When two Know Nothing holdovers joined the Republicans, the party controlled the upper house. Democrats won the House, however, 61 to 38, sufficient for a majority on joint ballot.

Jesse D. Bright, his Senate term up, had a bigger than usual stake in the 1856 election. If Bright's supporters did not dominate the 1857 General Assembly, either outgoing Governor Joseph A. Wright or some Republican would win his seat. Next to his own ambitions, Bright wanted to help James Buchanan secure the Democratic presidential nomination. Bright cajoled, threatened, and engaged in shameless double-dealing at the state convention to get his way. Ashbel P. Willard, hand picked by Bright, won the gubernatorial nomination and Bright men controlled the delegation to the national convention. At Cincinnati in June the Indiana caucus voted 16 to 10 to support Buchanan over Stephen A. Douglas although the latter was the clear favorite with Indiana's Democratic voters.[39] Bright's tactics paid off; Willard was elected governor in October, Buchanan carried Indiana in November, and the senator won his third term in January, 1857. But in the process Bright opened wounds that festered for four years and helped ruin his party by 1860.

Passion and numbers supplanted discourse and compromise in the general assemblies of the late 1850s. Slavery in Kansas, an issue that the Indiana legislature was powerless to decide, engendered the passion. Puerility replaced statesmanship on both sides in 1857 when someone surreptitiously placed an inflammatory pamphlet entitled ''The Kansas Struggle of 1856 . . .'' on the desks of Democratic senators, who responded with a demand that the authors of the writing be hung.[40]

Accident—On Saturday afternoon a straw-shed on the farm of Freeman Kelley fell down, and buried under it three colts, two cows, several young cattle and about a dozen hogs. All the stock, except one cow were killed. The loss is estimated at about $300. The cow killed belonged to I. M. Kelley, and the balance to Freeman Kelley.

It is a fact, not generally understood, that when swine die from disease the owners are bound by law to bury or burn the carcasses. This

This is the way the democratic organ of this county refers to our Freeman's granger addresses: "He was solid and understood his business, as his voice could be heard on the street, which sounded like a marshal band playing for a dress parade." The streets of Auburn certainly have a peculiarity; but possibly it was Freeman's voice to which our contemporary referred.

"Let no Guilty Man Escape."—The soul of the Courier man was troubled, last week, over a story that the grand jury was investigating the manner in which Cornelius elected the Representative from this County, in 1874. Every fair-minded person knows that the man, for whom a majority of the voters of the county cast their ballots, was not permitted to occupy the seat. Many believe that, to bring about this result, a crime was committed. In this view of the case, and when the "bottom facts" about all "crookedness" are being brought to light, we grieve to notice the Courier "squealing," as soon as its party friends are mentioned. "Let no guilty man escape."

Circuit Court.

In addition to the two candidates for Michigan City, named last week, George Grey, of Garrett, was sent up for two years. He was charged with stealing clothing. On Friday last the jury returned a verdict for defendant, in the slander case of Schamp vs. Hartzel Wanemaker, from Stafford township. Saturday the Court heard the application for a change of administrator of the John Houlton estate, and took the matter under advisement. These, with minor matters, occupied the attention of the Court until the adjournment hour on Saturday. Monday and Tuesday the application to set aside the will of Jacob Wiltrout, of Fairfield township came up. After the evidence was all in, the plaintiffs dismissed the suit.

John J. Zimmerman, bound over to Court for robbing and setting fire to the store, at Summit, failed to appear, and we presume his bail, $500, has been forfeited.

The great scandal suit, from Fairfield township, is down for trial to-day.

From Troy.

Troy, Ind., March, 13, 1876.

Editor Press.—James, son of Adam Dinnis, died of consumption last Thursday at his father's in the north of Troy. Deceased was nineteen years of age, and had been an invalid for two years. His remains were removed to Fulton Co., Ohio, for burial.

Sorry to learn of Mr. McClure's affliction. He was one of the early residents of this township, and has hosts of friends. I first knew him more than twenty-five years ago, when he was mail carrier on the old route from Defiance Ohio, to Lima Ind. And Uncle Tim was then the favorite of all the boys on the route, and I presume he had a personal acquaintance with all the families then living on the entire route, for all of whom he did errands and marketing at Defiance, then our only produce market.

Knowing ones say that the fruit is still safe and if nothing happens, apples will be as plenty this year as potatoes were last.

From Newville.

March 13, 1876.

The old St. Joe is again trying to get on "a high," and bids fair to overflow its banks again.

Moody has advertised his goods at cost, and sells at auction next Saturday. He has been in poor health for several months, and intends to close out, settle up, and devote several months to traveling.

—The funeral of Elder Halsell was largely attended, at Coburn's Corners last week. Although the notice was short, and the roads almost impassable, the house was not large enough to accommodate all that were in attendance.

—The Newville Graded School will open the Spring term, April 3d.

Sorry to learn of Mr. McClure's affliction. He was one of the early residents of this township, and has hosts of friends. I first knew him more than twenty-five years ago, when he was mail carrier on the old route from Defiance Ohio, to Lima Ind. And Uncle Tim was then the favorite of all the boys on the route, and I presume he had a personal acquaintance with all the families then living on the entire route, for all of whom he did errands and marketing at Defiance, then our only produce market.

is sent to occupy it merely as a tenement. The part of this theory that is new, is that which identifies the souls of men with the fallen angels. Each of us not only pre-existed, as to the soul, which is the man, but was one of Satan's fallen hosts, one of those who in the war in heaven with Michael, were cast out into the earth.

The author's defense of this view is quite ingenious, but his method is that of an advocate, not that of a philosopher. He defends a hypothesis, rather than reaches, by careful and patient investigation, and rigid process of analysis and synthesis, the lesson of revelation and reason.

Thinkers always hear with misgivings new views on old subjects, and watch with care for the presumed sophism that lurks in the reasoning. But few will be satisfied, we predict, with the method by which the fundamental assumption of this theory is reached. What is it? Simply to so read the passage in Rev. xii. concerning "war in heaven" as to bring the 9th and 11th verses into close grammatical connection with one another, and so make the pronoun "they" in 11th verse refer to the "angels of Satan" spoken of in the conclusion of verse 9. Thus the 11th verse is made to say the angels of Satan who were cast out into the earth with him, overcame him (Satan) by the blood of the Lamb, etc. Now even if we could allow the monstrous exegetical outrage of striking out the 10th verse in this way, we would still have to assume that a new war was afterwards waged on the earth between Satan and his angels, in which his angels overcame him through the blood of the Lamb; which is a pure fancy—since nowhere is there any, the remotest hint, of such a conflict. But, restore the passage to its integrity, read the 10th verse in the place in which the Holy Spirit placed it, and then "they" grammatically refers, not to Satan's

ELDER JAMES HADSELL.

The readers of the CHRISTIAN STANDARD have already been apprised of the death of our beloved brother in Christ and fellow laborer in the gospel, Elder James Hadsell, of Waterloo, Ind.

He was, however, so widely known and so greatly esteemed as a faithful minister of the New Testament, that a more extended notice of his life and death will, no doubt, be looked for by the brethren.

James Hadsell is beloved for his works' sake, tenderly remembered for qualities of character which marked him as a rare and noble man. He was born in the State of New York, Feb. 25, 1813. While he was yet young, his father moved with his family to Trumbull Co., O., where he continued to reside until the summer of 1836, when, having married Miss Mary Abels, and having already confessed and obeyed the Lord Jesus nearer to thee," and "Sweet by and by." At the close of this beautiful hymn he said in an audible voice, "that will do," which were his last words. In about ten minutes after this, calmly and without a struggle he passed away. On the Thursday following, his remains were conveyed to his old home near Coburn's Corners, where his funeral was largely attended by his old neighbors and brethren. The funeral sermon was preached by the writer from the words, "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." After the sermon, eloquent and sympathetic words were spoken by Brethren Coburn, Sutton, Chapman, Leavitt and Aylsworth, fellow-preachers who had come to mingle their tears at his grave.

Perhaps some will think this notice too long. But to thousands, it will be felt to be far too meager; while to one precious circle, it will seem all imperfection. I dare not say how much I loved him. In the language of another, "Let this and a thousand other precious memories be as seed sown, to spring up into a full harvest of joy and holy fellowships when the saints arise in the likeness of Jesus, who is our life and our everlasting hope."

NANCY DOWNING.

In Middleport, Meigs Co., O., Jan. 4th, of paralysis, our dear sister NANCY DOWNING, wife of Franklin Downing, deceased, left us to join her "loved ones" in the "Better Land;" in the sixty-sixth year of her age. In 1829 she united with the Christian Church, and truly it can be said of her, "She hath done what she could." Her heart was ever open to the cries of the needy, and the poor never went unhelped from her door. Four years ago she had her first stroke of paralysis, and although suffering greatly at times, she was ever cheerful and patient, and ever had a pleasant smile and word for those around her. Her husband and three children preceded her, leaving an only daughter and many relatives and friends to mourn her irreparable loss.

during the feeling and excitement consequent on these discussions of the Bishops that what is known as the "Bishops' Bible" was published. Growing out of their desire and determination, if possible, to put down immersion, many perversions of passages relating to this ordinance found their way into the "Bishops' Bible." Nearly half a century after, when King James's translators sat down to their task, it was under these, among other restrictions: "Keep as close as possible to the Bishops' Bible. The old ecclesiastical words (of which baptize was one) must be kept."

The writer of the article from which we have quoted in the Ed. Encyc., after stating how sprinkling was introduced into Scotland and England from Geneva, says, "John Calvin was the first man among Protestants that changed the ordinance."

Dr. Wall says, "Pouring was the substitute for baptism which Calvin first adopted, and his sprinkling was only the substitute of a substitute, and was the most scandalous thing ever adopted for baptism." "The Presbyterian Church in Geneva is the first church on earth that ever enjoined sprinkling." He also says that in England, "sprinkling, in 1645, was just beginning, and was used by very few."

The original law of parliament, in 1534, enforced immersion. The act of parliament of 1644 repealed so much of the old law as enforced immersion, and enforced sprinkling in its stead. The Presbyterian church first began in England not far from 1541, and the Independents soon after. It was not until the decision of the Westminstor Assembly, in 1643, by a vote of 25 to 24 excluded immersion, that the practice of immersion ceased among the Presbyterians. It is simply amazing that any man can know these facts, and still prate of conscientious opposition to immersion.

BOOK TABLE.

ORIGIN OF MAN. A Treatise of Angels, Devils and Men, and a Compendium of "War in Heaven," which is an answer to the question, What is Man? With notes on Spiritualism, Darwinism, etc. By JAMES P. SIMMONS. Norcross, Ga. 25 cts.

This treatise seems to have been written in the conviction that the theory which it advocates as to the "Origin of Man" is the only one upon which we "can successfully defend our holy religion against the assaults which are made upon it daily by learned men who lead the infidel hosts." The author accepts the popular Christian belief as to man in his relation to God in the past, the present and the future, except that belief "as to the nature and origin of the soul and the effect of the fall upon us." These he thinks are totally wrong. After showing his reasons for this dissent, he proceeds to give: 1. All the old views of psychologists, including that of infidels, on the origin, etc., of the soul, and 2. His own view. The old views, he classifies as:

1. "That the soul is but the rational thinking power of man, and although superior to that of other animals, had no previangels, but to "our brethren," who are declared to be the victors through the blood of the Lamb. The scene, whatever it describes, belongs to the epoch of Christianity.

Besides, this passage in Rev. xii. describes a scene in the period covered by the proclamation of the "seventh angel" and this, in chronological order, can not be made to antedate the creation of man, the toon adelphoon autoon of the 10th verse. But upon the hypothesis that the souls of all men were and are of these cast out angels of Satan—the scene of this overthrow and casting out into the earth must have preceded the creation of man, else they could not have furnished souls for the race! Is it not a further difficulty in the way of this assumption—that, in the historic and unfigurative style of Jude and Peter, the fate of these fallen angels is positively stated to be entirely different? Jude says, "And the angels which kept not their first estate, but left their own habitation, he hath reserved in everlasting chains, under darkness, unto the judgment of the great day." How can a state and a fate like this be made consistent with a theory which makes these very angels the souls of men, and many of them the redeemed sons and daughters of the Lord God Almighty! Again Peter says, "God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them down to Tartarus, and delivered them into chains of darkness, to be reserved unto the judgment." This is not a declaration concerning some or a part—but the whole class—all. There is no remedial grace for any. Surely there is nothing in this language which looks like those fallen and imprisoned angels are to become the free denizens of this earth, the souls of men, and the redeemed of the Lamb!

But our space will not allow us to criticise this hypothesis further. The author claims for it the special merit of furnishing "the only battle ground on which Christianity, in this advanced age, can successfully meet the disciplined hosts of infidelity" — and for those who are looking anxiously around for such advantage, here is a fair challenge to their earnest consideration. The subject is important, and though out of the usual range of popular literature, yet it is treated with clearness, simplicity and force. This new theory may be and doubtless is very comfortable to the author, but between the extremes of being on the one hand, but a developed monkey, and on the other, a fallen, angel, we prefer the good old middle ground of Genesis, which teaches us, that man became a living soul by the creative energy of the Spirit of God (Gen. ii. 7).

Magazines, Pamphlets, Etc.

Popular Science Monthly, April. Prof. Huxley probes around in the border territory between animal and vegetable organisms, which seems to be a favorite field with him, and is indeed important to his automaton theory. Prof. Merriman speculates on the interior of the Antarctic continent, contending that it is a solid mountain of ice, some 8,000,000 square miles in extent, and not less than two and a half miles high. The relation of this mass to the superior exposure of land in the northern hemisphere, and the "whirligig of time" which, in some 10,500 years, may put the smile on the other side of Mother Earth's icicled face, is a captivating idea if not quite substantial enough yet to swear by.

Christ, and begun the proclamation of the primitive gospel, he, with his young wife, removed to DeKalb Co., Ind., which at that time was nearly a wilderness. He settled in Concord Township, DeKalb Co., Ind., where he continued to reside until the year 1864.

On the 17th day of February, 1837, with ten others, he assisted in organizing a Christian Church in that neighborhood, planting it on the divine foundation. That congregation is now nearly forty years old, and is now and has been, during all these years, a power in the community. It is the mother of many other churches in that section of country.

During Bro. Hadsell's residence here he traveled extensively as an evangelist. Many of the churches in Northwestern Indiana, Southern Michigan and Northern Ohio owe their existence to his faithful labors.

When the country was new, he would travel thirty, forty, fifty, and sometimes one hundred miles on horseback, hold a protracted meeting, gather a large number of happy converts into the church, and return home, receiving but the most meagre compensation for his labor.

Under his preaching several thousand persons have been converted and become obedient to the Lord Jesus Christ.

He once represented his county in the State Legislature, and in various ways has been honored by his fellow citizens considerably beyond the average lot of citizens. He was a strong anti-slavery man, when it was considered almost a crime to be an abolitionist. He was a consistent and earnest temperance man, pleading at all times and on all occasions for the suppression both of the manufacture and sale of ardent drinks. He was a strong advocate of the Sunday-school, and worked most efficiently in it, and was very successful in bring many of the children to Christ.

He was an uncompromising advocate of co-operation for missionary work, and rejoiced in every effort our people made either for home or foreign missions. He was as true to the gospel as the needle to the pole. He had no compromise at all with sin or error in any form, believing that the gospel is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth. He greatly desired to have our churches co-operate to send the pure, sweet, simple gospel of Christ to the nations of the earth, and nothing gave him greater pain than the opposition of a few, calling themselves brethren, to our missionary work.

He frequently attended our county, district, State and national missionary conventions; and his wise counsels will not soon be forgotten by the brethren who were permitted to listen to him in these conventions.

In 1864, he removed to Kendallville and took charge of the church there. He remained there until 1871. During his stay at Kendallville the church increased in numbers, in piety and in influence, until it became a power in the place. In 1871, he was called to the pastorate of the church in La Porte. His labors in La Porte were greatly blessed, but being urged by the missionary board to take charge of the mission at Waterloo City, he consented to do so, and in 1872, removed to the latter place, where he continued to live until the Master called him to the better land.

He was the father of eight children—all living, and all honored members of the church of Christ.

Thirteen years ago, in the providence of God, the writer accidently became acquainted with him. For many years we were together much of the time holding protracted meetings. We have wept and rejoiced together. We have read God's word and prayed together, and together our hearts have leaped with joy as our ears have been saluted with the songs of new-born converts lisping forth the praises of their divine Redeemer. We loved each other as David and Jonathan did, and the writer of these lines has thanked God a thousand times that he ever became acquainted with James Hadsell.

A short time previous to his death we visited him and spent three days with him. He was trembling on the brink of the river

This treatise seems to have been written in the conviction that the theory which it advocates as to the "Origin of Man" is the only one upon which we "can successfully defend our holy religion against the assaults which are made upon it daily by learned men who lead the infidel hosts." The author accepts the popular Christian belief as to man in his relation to God in the past, the present and the future, except that belief "as to the nature and origin of the soul and the effect of the fall upon us." These he thinks are totally wrong. After showing his reasons for this dissent, he proceeds to give: 1. All the old views of psychologists, including that of infidels, on the origin, etc., of the soul, and 2. His own view. The old views, he classifies as:

1. "That the soul is but the rational thinking power of man, and although superior to that of other animals, had no previous existence, but is procreated as is the body, and perishes with it."

2. "That at the beginning of the world, God created the souls of all men, which, however, are not united to the body till the individuals for whom they are destined are begotten or born into the world.

3. "That the soul is created at the moment when the body is prepared for its habitation.

4. "That the soul and body are alike, and together propagated by the parents, neither having had any previous existence."

We give these four old views in the author's own words. We do not propose to criticise the statement of them, further than to say that it is quite too incomplete in comprehension and defective in precision of definition to be accepted as a fair philosophical presentation of these old views.

The author's own view, is, "that the souls of all men existed before the creation of this world; that they are of the fallen angels who were engaged in rebellion under Satan in heaven, and were, by Michael and his hosts, 'cast out into the earth;' and that when the body destined for each is prepared, the spirit is sent to occupy it merely as a tenement." The part of this theory that is new, is that which identifies the souls of men with the fallen angels. Each of us not only pre-existed, as to the soul, which is the man, but was one of Satan's fallen hosts, one of those who in the war in heaven with Michael, were cast out into the earth.

The author's defense of this view is quite ingenious, but his method is that of an advocate, not that of a philosopher. He defends a hypothesis, rather than reaches, by careful and patient investigation, and rigid process of analysis and synthesis, the lesson of revelation and reason.

Thinkers always hear with misgivings new views on old subjects, and watch with care for the presumed sophism that lurks in the reasoning. But few will be satisfied, we predict, with the method by which the fundamental assumption of this theory is reached. What is it? Simply to so read the passage in Rev. xii. concerning "war in heaven" as to bring the 9th and 11th verses into close grammatical connection with one another, and so make the pronoun "they" in 11th verse refer to the "angels of Satan" spoken of in the conclusion of verse 9. Thus the 11th verse is made to say the angels of Satan who were cast out into the earth with him, overcame him (Satan) by the blood of the Lamb, etc. Now even if we could allow the monstrous exegetical outrage of striking out the 10th verse in this way, we would still have to assume that a new war was afterwards waged on the earth between Satan and his angels, in which his angels overcame him through the blood of the came a living soul by the creative energy of the Spirit of God (Gen. ii. 7).

Magazines, Pamphlets, Etc.

Popular Science Monthly, April. Prof. Huxley probes around in the border territory between animal and vegetable organisms, which seems to be a favorite field with him, and is indeed important to his automaton theory. Prof. Merriman speculates on the interior of the Antarctic continent, contending that it is a solid mountain of ice, some 8,000,000 square miles in extent, and not less than two and a half miles high. The relation of this mass to the superior exposure of land in the northern hemisphere, and the "whirligig of time" which, in some 10,500 years, may put the smile on the other side of Mother Earth's icled face, is a captivating idea if not quite substantial enough yet to swear by.

The Sanitarian, April. "Has New York a Board of Health?" is a pat question, after Mr. Leeds' explorations in some of the "first-class" tenement houses of the city, wherein two-thirds of the rooms are without light or ventilation. The Sanitarian has enlisted for three years, or during the war, against such iniquity, and will have the sympathy of every intelligent citizen. The "Value of Health to a City" is a practical lecture to the public of Munich, Bavaria, on the material returns to be expected from improved sanitary appliances. It is a valuable contribution to this all-important question. "Hospital Construction and Organization" called out by the reports on the projected John Hopkins' Hospital, Baltimore, takes the ground that the prevalent theory that hospitals should not be of more than one story, is not a correct one, and that the advantages which accrue from placing "foul wards" in the upper stories, more than counterbalance all that can be urged for the one-story method. The point is well urged. A good number throughout.

Wide Awake, April. "The Doll-Mission" begins to return better than it promised already. "The Cooking Club of Tuwhit Hollow," we are assured on good authority, is just the thing for the multitudes of girls who want to make good housekeepers of themselves—and who doesn't? As for all that is pretty and curious and instructive, we need only say that every other page is illustrated, and with a variety and good taste that will do for all.

The Phrenological Journal for April descants on General John Glover, who figured in a little unpleasantness occasionally referred to this year, the Revolutionary War. The biographical sketch is very interesting There is also a sketch of an interesting character in "Geo. Walton Williams," and another in "Horace Bushnell," "Psychological Basis of Religion," "Capital and Labor," "Where the Day Begins," etc., fill up a good number.

A short time previous to his death we visited him and spent three days with him. He was trembling on the brink of the river of death, expecting at any moment to be called over. He was full of faith and hope, ready, yea anxious to hear the summons Many and beautiful were his words of faith and trust in Jesus.

When he requested me, if possible, to attend and preach his funeral, he requested me to say to the people that in the dying hour he had no doubts at all as to the reality of our holy religion, nor as to the correctness of our plea as a religious people. "Tell them," he said, "that during my life I have done the best I could, but that I am not trusting in anything I have done for my salvation. I am trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ. I expect to stand complete in him, clothed with his righteousness." He died on Monday, March 6th, at 9 o'clock P. M. On the day before, which was the Lord's day, at his own request some of the brethren met at his house and attended to the solemn institution of the Lord's Supper. After short services, and after he had eaten of the loaf and drank of the cup for the last time, he made a farewell address to his family and brethren. His burning words of faith and hope and love will never be forgotten by those who heard them. Then after singing a sweet song of Zion, he requested Bro. Kilby to pronounce the benediction.

He had his senses to the very last, and continued to express his confidence in Christ, until about ten minutes before he breathed his last, when at his request those present joined in singing "Nearer, my God, to thee, nearer to thee," and "Sweet by and by." At the close of this beautiful hymn he said in an audible voice, "that will do," which were his last words. In about ten minutes after this, calmly and without a struggle he passed away. On the Thursday following, his remains were conveyed to his old home near Coburn's Corners, where his funeral was largely attended by his old neighbors and brethren. The funeral sermon was preached by the writer from the words, "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." After the sermon, eloquent and sympathetic words were spoken by Brethren Coburn, Sutton, Chapman, Leavitt and Aylsworth, fellow-preachers who had come to mingle their tears at his grave.

Perhaps some will think this notice too long. But to thousands, it will be felt to be far too meager; while to one precious circle, it will seem all imperfection. I dare not say how much I loved him. In the language of another, "Let this and a thousand other precious memories be as seed sown, to spring up into a full harvest of joy and holy fellowships when the saints arise in the likeness of Jesus, who is our life and our everlasting hope."

In 1829 she united with the Christian Church, and truly it can be said of her, "She hath done what she could." Her heart was ever open to the cries of the needy, and the poor never went unhelped from her door. Four years ago she had her first stroke of paralysis, and although suffering greatly at times, she was ever cheerful and patient, and ever had a pleasant smile and word for those around her. ELDER JAMES HADSELL

The readers of the CHRISTIAN STANDARD have already been apprised of the death of our beloved brother in Christ and fellow laborer in the gospel, Elder James Hadsell, of Waterloo, Indiana.

He was, however, so widely known and so greatly esteemed as a faithful minister of the New Testament, that a more extended notice of his life and death will, no doubt, be looked for by the brethren.

James Hadsell is beloved for his works' sake, tenderly remembered for qualities of character which marked him as a rare and noble man. He was born in the State of New York, Feb. 25, 1813. While he was yet young, his father moved with his family to Trumbull Co., O., where he continued to reside until the summer of 1836, when, having married Miss Mary Abel , and having already confessed and obeyed the Lord Jesus Christ, and begun the proclamation of the primitive gospel, he, with his young wife, removed to DeKalb Co., Ind., which at that time was nearly a wilderness. He settled in Concord Township, DeKalb Co., Ind., where he continued to reside until the year 1864.

On the 17th day of February, 1837, with ten others, he assisted in organizing a Christian Church in that neighborhood, planting it on the divine foundation. That congregation is now nearly forty years old, and is now and has been, during all these years, a power in the community. It is the mother of many other churches in that section of country.

During Bro. Hadsell's residence here he traveled extensively as an evangelist. Many of the churches in Northwestern Indiana, Southern Michigan and Northern Ohio owe their existence to his faithful labors.

When the country was new, he would travel thirty, forty, fifty, and sometimes one hundred miles on horseback, hold a protracted meeting, gather a large number of happy converts into the church, and return home, receiving but the most meagre compensation for his labor.

Under his preaching several thousand persons have been converted and become obedient to the Lord Jesus Christ.

He once represented his county in the State Legislature, and in various ways has been honored by his fellow citizens considerably beyond the average lot of citizens. He was a strong anti-slavery man, when it was considered almost a crime to be an abolitionist. He was a consistent and earnest temperance man, pleading at all times and on all occasions for the suppression both of the manufacture and sale of ardent drinks. He was a strong advocate of the Sunday-school, and worked most efficiently in it, and was very successful in bringing many of the children to Christ.

He was an uncompromising advocate of co-operation for missionary work, and rejoiced in every effort our people made either for home or foreign missions. He was as true to the gospel as the needle to the pole. He had no compromise at all with sin or error in any form, believing that the gospel is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth. He greatly desired to have our churches co-operate to send the pure, sweet, simple gospel of Christ to the nations of the earth, and nothing gave him greater pain than the opposition of a few, calling themselves brethren, to our missionary work.

He frequently attended our county, district, State and national missionary conventions; and his wise counsel will not soon be forgotten by the brethren who were permitted to listen to him in these conventions.

Mary A. Abel, ~~daughter of Daniel and Sally Root Abel, was born in Trumbull county, Ohio, Aug. 21, 1813~~ and departed this life at the home of her son, C. J. Hadsell at Hicksville, Ohio, Feb. 11, 1908, aged 94 years, 5 months and 20 days. She was united in marriage to Elder James Hadsell, March 12, 1835 who preceded her to the Eternal Home, March 7, 1876. To this union were born six boys and four girls, eight of whom grew to manhood and womanhood, two having died in infancy. In September 1836 she came with her husband and others to Coburn's Corners, cheerfully taking up the duties and bravely facing the hardships and dangers incident to life in a new country, she worked early and late to meet the demand of her growing family and her household cares. In addition to these duties, the frequent absence of her husband, whose calling as a teacher and minister of the gospel, often took him from home, leaving the work of the farm and management of the family to her care, which part she bore willingly and cheerfully. She united with the Church of Christ at Coburn's Corners soon after its organization and lived an earnest and faithful Christian life until the end. She leaves to mourn her departure, three sons and two daughters, 31 grand-children, 43 great grand-children and one great great grand-child and an innumerable host of friends. What a beautiful stream of light lingers after a great soul has passed beyond; passed into life, for "I am come that ye might have life."

EWERS

Asa J. Ewers, ~~son of Alonzo and Laura [illegible] was born April 1, [illegible] in Washington township, Defiance county, Ohio and~~ departed this life at the home of his parents in Mark township, February 12, 1908. He was aged [illegible] years, 10 months and 11 days. ~~He was always a kind, obedient and industrious son. The last three or four years he was an invalid, and suffered very greatly. He bore his suffering with [illegible] patience, and placed his trust in the Redeemer. Funeral services were held last Saturday, Rev. [illegible] Lilly officiating. Interment in Shaffer cemetery. Father, mother, sister and many friends mourn his departure.~~

HADSELL.

Mary A. Abel, ~~daughter of Daniel and Sally Hunt Abel, was born in Trumbull county, Ohio, Aug. 21, 1813 and~~ departed this life at the home of her son, C. J. Hadsell at Hicksville, Ohio, Feb. 11, 1908, aged 94 years, 5 months and 20 days. She was united in marriage to Elder James Hadsell, March 12, 1835 who preceded her to the Eternal Home, March 7, 1876. To this union were born six boys and four girls, eight of whom grew to manhood and womanhood, two having died in infancy. In September 1836 she came with her husband and others to Coburn's Corners, cheerfully taking up the duties and bravely facing the hardships and dangers incident to life in a new country, she worked early and late to meet the demand of her growing family and her household cares. In addition to these duties, the frequent absence of her husband, whose calling as a teacher and minister of the gospel often took him from home, leaving the work of the farm and management of the family to her care, which part she bore willingly and cheerfully. She united with the Church of Christ at Coburn's Corners soon after its organization and lived an earnest and faithful Christian life until the end. She leaves to mourn her departure, three sons and two daughters, [illegible] grand-children, 48 great grandchildren and one great great grand child and an innumerable host of friends. What a beautiful stream of light lingers after a great soul has passed beyond; passed into life, for "I am come that ye might have life."

SWAIDNER

John Swaidner, ~~the subject of this~~ sketch, was the ~~son and eldest child~~ of ~~Jacob and Barbara~~ Swaidner. He ~~was born in Columbiana~~ county, January ~~14, 1827~~, ~~and~~ died in Hicksville, February 11, ~~1908~~, aged 81 years and ~~nearly one month~~. During his boyhood his parents moved to Ashland county, O., where on January 20, 1848, he was married to Elizabeth Roby. To this union was born 5 children, three of whom survive: Sylvester Swaidner, [illegible] and Nelson and [illegible] with the N. E. Springfield M. P. church, he being the last of its charter members. He was a very faithful member and an earnest, steadfast, consistent Christian. He was of the sturdy pioneer stock, a man of toil, hardship, honesty, kindness and piety. He was a man of prayer and the song the angels sang on Bethlehem's plain was the spirit of his life. His sickness was of short duration. At first it seemed of little consequence, but later became more serious. An unusual spirit of prayer for his community and friends was upon him even while sick. He descended to the stream we call "death" in the full possession of his faculties. He assured all that it was well with him, that his hope was bright and at five o'clock Tuesday morning, John Swaidner answered the roll call of his God and entered into rest, while the mourners go about the streets and his children rise up and call him "blessed." The funeral sermon was preached by Rev. D. F. Helms in the Methodist church, Friday afternoon, February 14, and the body was laid to rest in the Scipio cemetery. The family and relatives have the sympathy of a host of friends.

MRS. M. J. HADSALL

Mrs. M. J. Hadsell, who for many weeks has been a patient sufferer at her home on Tight street, on Thursday last passed from earth's trials and pains into the unknown country. She had scarcely reached the meridian of her life until the silver cord was loosed, the golden bowl broken and a busy and useful career ended. In the passing of Mrs. Hadsell the world has lost a noble character, the church an active supporter and the community an upright, christian lady.

Emma May Hakes was born in Paulding, Ohio, May 11, 1867. Departed this life August 29, 1907, at the age of 40 years, 3 months and 18 days. She was united im marriage with Marshal Hadsell, October 3, 1889. She leaves a husband, two children, a large number of relatives and a multitude of friends to mourn her departure. Early in life Mrs. Hadsell became a teacher in the public schools, a position she was well qualified to fill, and much of her time of recent years has been devoted to musical instruction. Some over a year ago the family moved to Peru, Indiana, where Mrs. Hadsell was stricken with the disease which terminated fatally.

Funeral services were conducted from the Christian church Saturday afternoon by Rev. F. C. Lake, assisted by Rev. H. H. Devoe, of Peru, Indiana, Mrs. Hadsell's pastor in that city. Interment at Coburntown cemetery.

In our lecture course a few years ago, Ora Samuel Gray lectured here on the subject "Three P's in a Pod" and created such a favorable impression that the committee secured him for the fourth number of this season's course, which came Tuesday evening of last week. He gave a charming lecture on "Three C's in a circle" He has a force of expression and the gift of natural eloquence, that at once captivates his audience, his faith in God and man makes him see the sunny side. And being intensely eager to promote the reign of righteousness his lecture appealed to the good, in his hearers, especially the young, for them, surely, because of his coming, life will be richer and hope brighter, and a firmer resolve to get more out of life than a mere existence. Mr. Gray will be heartily welcomed here, should he ever return. He also complimented the committee in being so fortunate in securing the "Temple Quartette" which will be our next and last number Feb. 18, being one of the finest quartette in the Lyceum Bureau and would be a rare treat, long to be remembered, by those who would be fortunate enough to hear them.

Entertained.

One of the pleasant social events of the winter occured at the home of H. M. Widney on Saturday evening, Feb. 9th. When friends and neighbors numbering fifty-four gathered at their spacious home, northeast of town.

Some of the merry makers came "en masque" this feature of the program being to perpetrate a surprise upon the host, it being intended to make him guess the identity of each one so disguised. But Mr. Widney anticipated this surprise in advance and was enshrouded in a make-up that made the best costume of the maskers look like "thirty cents."

Much merriment was aroused over the various costumes however, also concerning the identity of those within them and after this had subsided the make-ups were removed. Games and music then occupied the attention of the guests until eleven o'clock, when the hostess ushered them to the dining room where they sat down to a sumptious repast consisting of oysters and other delicacies. Supper having been served, the guests for a short time engaged in social conversation and then repaired to their various homes feeling that they had indeed spent an enjoyable evening and conceeding the host and hostess to be entertainers of the first rank.

Sad Accident.

Friday afternoon about one o'clock, the residents of St. Joe and vicinity were startled by the news that Vincent Dilley, living on the Swineford farm north of town, had been struck by No. 7, the fast train going west on the B. & O. crossing in the west part of town. As soon as possible a number of people were upon the scene, a sled secured quickly and the injured man removed to Dr. Bowman's office when, as they were carrying him in, he breathed his last. His wife was notified of the sad accident and in a short time he was removed to his home.

Mr. Dilley was on his way to town on business and it is supposed that he did not hear the train until it was too late. Indications shows that the horse saw the train when nearing the track, and, whirling, started up the the track. The rig was entirely demolished and Mr. Dilley carried about 50 feet while the horse laid over 100 feet from where it was struck.

The funeral services were held in the Lutheran church Tuesday forenoon, Rev. Dressel preaching the funeral, assisted by Rev. S. Heininger of this place, and Rev. Hill, and burial at Spencerville. Beams & Baker, funeral directors. This was beyond a doubt, the largest funeral ever in St. Joe. Mr. Dilley was an upright, truthful and honest man and was known by many people.

Dr. Bowman and son Ray had a narrow escape for their lives Monday evening. They had been called to David Poper's and when they were about to cross the railroad near the grist mill and they stopped to see if a train was coming. Not seeing any they started across. As the horse was over the track they noticed No. 9 coming and the horse wheeled around upsetting the buggy and throwing them out. The horse stopped immediately and no further damage was done.

Our mail carriers have been having their annual experience with bad roads and high waters. Friday and Saturday the routes failed to make their trips on account of the muddy roads. No. 1 could not cross at the Dill's bridge on account of the high water and No. 2 could not cross the creek for the same reason. The patrons close to town are carrying their own mail until the routes can come their way.

The saloon fight at Auburn is waxing warm, some of its best citizens are being busily engaged in the work. A perfect organization has been perfected and an earnest effort will be put forth to down the saloons. The second ward contains all of Auburn's saloons and in order to force them ou t will be necessary to secure 148 tures. This ward includes the e e business section. The saloon men are getting busy looking after their interests as well as others. Waterloo is engaged in a similar fight but they have the entire township to draw from.

Mrs. Mary Hadsell

Dies at the Advanced Age of 94 Years. Was One of the Early Settlers of DeKalb County.

Mary A Abel, daughter of Daniel and Sally Root Abel, was born in Trumbull county, Ohio, August 24, 1813, and died at the home of her son C. J. Hadsell at Hicksville, Ohio, Feb. 11, 1908, aged 94 years, 5 months and 20 days.

She was united in marriage March 12, 1835, to Elder Jas." Hadsell; who preceded her to the eternal home thirty-two years ago. To this union were born six boys and four daughters, eight of whom grew to manhood and womanhood, two having died in infancy.

In September 1836 she came with her husband and others, to this county and settled on a farm near Coburn's Corners. Cheerfully taking up the duties and braving the hardships incident to life in a new country. In addition to her household duties and the care of her growing family, the frequent absence of her husband as a teacher and minister, placed upon her the additional responsibility of looking after the work of the farm, all of which duties she cheerfully performed.

She united with the Church of Christ at Coburn's Corners soon after its organization and lived an earnest christian life to the end. Her cheerful, sunny disposition was the light of the home and breathed a welcome to all who entered its portals.

She leaves to mourn her departure three sons and two daughters and a host of relatives and friends. What a beautiful stream of light lingers after a great soul has passed beyond: Passed into life for, "I am come that ye might have Life."

Funeral was conducted by L. L. Carpenter at the Coburntown church, Feb. 13, 1908 and burial in Alton cemetery.

History of Christian Church in Waterloo,

The meeting resulting in the organization of the Christian Church in Waterloo, DeKalb Co., Indiana was begun by Elder James Hadsell of Kendallvill, Ind., April 2, 1866.

By the earnest solicitations of J. F. & M. F. Radcliff, Elder Hadsell preached nine sermons and was compelled to meet other appointments. He had to this date a good and attentive hearing, and some persons had signified their intentions and wishes to obey the "Gospel," he left however without giving any invitation. During the time of his absence Elder Bartlett preached two sermons when five came forward (four for immersion). Then Elder Hadsell returned and resumed labors, preaching four of the nine sermons, when two others came out to obey.

At this date Elder Bartlett resumed preaching three days (three sermons). during which time two others made confession. At this stage of the meeting Elder W. B. Hendryx, of Ligonier, Indiana, began to conduct the meeting to the date of of the organization eighteen sermons, during which time seven came from other churches who had been immersed and eighteen were immersed.

The opposition to the meeting was extreme. False reports, and unchristian actions were continually in the way of those who would enter the kingdom: Some forbade their relations and friends obeying the gospel.

The United Brethren shut us out of their house, and Presbyterians and Congregationalists not only refused to bid us "God speed" but stirred up the people against us, and every where gave their voice against us. But truth prevailed [illegible] the name of Jesus was honored by the obedience of many.

During the time of the labors of W. B. Hendryx

A HISTORY OF THE CHURCH OF CHRIST

AT

COBURN'S CORNERS

DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA

1836 1937

Walter H. Coburn

(This second review of the Church's history offers further details about the early years as well as information regarding events that transpired during the interval 1876-1937. CEB)

The earliest record of the church at Coburn Corners is found in a leather bound, plain ruled notebook with a leather slide fastener. On the outside are lettered the words "Church Record Book." The earliest writing is in ink now faded brown but still legible. In later entries the ink is still black and easy to read. The last entry is in pencil. The date of the first entry is not known. The oldest date must have been after March 5, 1838 for it was written after the changing of the name of the township from DeKalb to Concord. This occurred on the date given above. It was probably written before July 1, 1846, for a revision is made of the roll at that date. The last entry was made in 1890.

The church book now used was opened as a record of church meetings in 1915 although the indications are that the rolls were kept from 1890. Just what happened to any records kept in the intervening years is not known. This is unfortunate but since many are still living who were active in the work during those years we have a memory record for the time.

We do not know who wrote the first entries. The only officer named was the Bishop. If the clerk or secretary was named it would probably be safe to name him as the writer. There is just one clue. Benjamin Alton Sr. is the last named male adult. This would be the natural order if he were the writer.

We quote the first entry as follows:

> "A record of the origin and proceedings of the Church of the Deciples (writer's spelling) in Concord Township formerly called DeKalb. (This township is now divided. The Alton home was in what is now Concord. The "Corners" are in Spencer.)
> "In the year of our Lord one thousand and thirty-six, a few desciples having moved into the township from Trumbull Co., Ohio, facing (or possibly 'feeling') their obligation to God to keep his institutions and commandments and to exhibit Christianity as far as was in their power, met accordingly at the > house of Benj. Alton and formed into that order which we believed the scriptures require in the month of February 1836."

The date of the organization is a point of controversy. In the history of the church written in 1894 for the anniversary, the date is given as February 17, 1837. It is certain that the date of February 17, 1836 is incorrect for the first settlers did not arrive here until March of that year. The History of DeKalb County states that James Hadsell arrived here on March 1, 1836. John F. and Asher W. Coburn entered their land on March 9, 1836. Wilmot P. Coburn, the son of John F., tells us that his father gives the date as given by Russell Coburn. The second entry of an annual meeting records the election of James Hadsell as bishop in a meeting of March, 1838. There is no entry for 1837 except that at the top of a page following the roll of charter members this date heads a list of names of members received. Winifred Coburn Hart states that her grandfather Charles Coburn said that when he came to the neighborhood with his father in the Fall of 1836, services were being held in various homes.

Among the names of those received into membership in 1837, Charles' name appears with that of his father Ebenezer and brother Russell G. If these men came in the Fall of 1836 and the church was organized in 1837 why are they not charter members? Charles Coburn may be mistaken in the date of their arrival for their land was entered on August 15, 1837. We believe that the date February 17, 1837, is the correct date. The date '1836' for a year later is a natural mistake as any letter writer will testify.

In the history by R. G. Coburn, we read:

> "The Christian Church at Coburn's Corners was organized on the 17th day of February in the year 1837 by Elder Benjamin Alton, who was the first minister of the Gospel to locate in DeKalb County and who preached the first sermon ever preached in that county, and the church here at Coburn's Corners was the first church of any denomination organized in DeKalb County.
> "It was organized in the house of Brother Alton, a little log cabin, about 16 x 20, one and one-half miles north of the Corners on the bank of the St. Joe River."

The log cabin stood on the farm now owned by Roy Maxwell just north of the present brick house and near the river.

This movement West is now a familiar story of American progress. They came from the "East" although their East was still the "West" to their fellow Americans along the Atlantic Seaboard. They came to "better themselves" financially. They were the genuine settlers as distinguished from the squatters who formed a ragged fringe as the vanguard of civilization. They sold their farms or other possessions in the East. With a load of one wagon, in the case of these men a pretty poor wagon, and perhaps some driven cattle, the move was made.

The Northern part of Indiana was not settled although the State was twenty years old. The reasons for this do not properly belong in a local history but for background we give them here. The line of immigration from Pennsylvania was Southwest down the mountain valleys and through the passes into Kentucky and Tennessee. The adventurous New Englander went to sea and furthermore, was cut off from the West by the old settlements along the Hudson. When the Connecticut Reserve became known, the New Englanders started West. The settlement at Coburn's Corners was an extension of this new Westward movement.

For the reasons given above, Northern Indiana was an almost unbroken wilderness, interspersed with small prairies when the tide of immigration swept over it in the 1830's. In 1835, Asher W. Coburn made a trip to the county to select land for settlement. Probably he first visited the land office in the village of Ft. Wayne and journeyed up the river. He made the selection along the left bank. Because of his selection, the little group came in 1836 to their new homes. The first few months were undoubtedly spent in strenuous toil. Land must be cleared for corn for bread. Cabins must be erected. It is said that a cabin for Asher W. Coburn was the first built because of the frail health of his wife. This cabin stood across the road and little north of the Cad Shull home. The old apple tree in the field stood near the house. By the Spring of 1837, the most urgent labor was done. In the meeting in the little cabin, the church was organized. In the faded ink of the record, we read that they -

> "Unanimously appointed Benjamin Alton as Bishop of the Congregation to preach the word and administer the ordinances of the house of God.
> "The number of the names in the origin of the church is as follows:
> John F. Coburn
> Asher W. Coburn
> Sam'l Headly
> Nancy Babcock (wife of Geo. Babcock)
> Benj. Alton, Junior
> Benj. Alton
> Minerva Coburn (wife of John F.)
> Hannah Coburn (wife of Asher W.)
> James Hadsell
> Lorenzo D. Alton (Dow)
> Fanny Alton (wife of Benj.)"

We must not think of these as elderly staid men. Alton was the oldest of the group and was thirty-seven, the only one born during the old century. Asher Coburn was thirty-three; John F. was thirty; James Hadsell was only twenty-three; Samuel Headley was a young unmarried man.

The group came from Trumbull County. They had participated in the Current Reformation. With the possible exception of James Hadsell, they had been drawn into the new movement from older groups. The four married men of the group were native to New York State of New England blood. They had participated in the gradual transformation that moved them from former firmly-held and dear faiths to the new conception of the church and scriptures. With this background, with a common conception of the church, they came together and laid the foundation for a century and more of Christian service.

After the common manner, the first preaching was done by local men. Of course, Benjamin Alton Senior was the logical man to select at first. The next year,

James Hadsell although yet quite young, was also set aside for the work of the ministry. John F. Coburn was the next called. It is not known when he was set aside but in the roll of 1846, he is listed as an evangelist. It was a number of years before he was chosen Elder. We here give a brief sketch of the lives of each of these men:

The sketch of the life of Benjamin Alton Sr. is from the "history of the Disciples in the Western Reserve." It is said to have been written by John F. Coburn for the author of the book. At any rate, he is the authority for names and dates, etc. This sketch is found on page 300 ff:

> "Benjamin Alton was born February 22, 1799. His early life was spent in Genesee County, New York. At the age of eighteen, he was a zealous exhorter among the Methodists. Falling in with Elder Wm. True of the "Christian Connection," he was baptized by him and continued to preach the gospel as he understood it.
> "About the year 1827, he moved to North Bloomfield, Trumbull County. He was a man of marked ability, full size, finely formed and possessed a most winning manner and tender speech. He had been very successful as a revivalist among the "New Lights" or Christians. In the process of his ministry, he became convinced that something was radically wrong in the exhibition of the gospel in these times. Disgusted and discouraged, he determined to hide himself in a "lodge" in the wilderness, and there in the quietness live for his family and Heaven. He settled on lands in the dense forests of Bloomfield. He was fast tending to skepticism and might have been swept into the vortex of infidelity but for an incident which called him forth to the light and to great usefulness.
> "About the year 1829, the good people of Bloomfield called a public meeting and resolved to unite in raising a fund to support preaching, and all go to meeting together. It was an effort, after its kind, for a union for religious purposes - a union of diversity. But the union not arising out of previously existing unity - the only condition of a permanent union - it proved of short duration. As the Presbyterians were the most numerous, they were to have the house half the time; the Baptists and the Methodists one quarter, and the Unitarians the other quarter.
> "SquireBrown, a prominent citizen, was to secure the Unitarian minister. By him, Benjamin Alton was engaged. Alton, thus called from his coveted retreat, consented to gird himself within the panoply of the gospel. He came regularly to his appointments. He would sit quietly a while in the pulpit and then, rising, proceed to preach without singing or prayer. He usually preached on the prophecies and many became interested in his sermons.
> "About this time, William Hayden preached at the centre of Bloomfield and staying overnight with Alton, these two Bible men spent much of the night searching the Scriptures in relation to the ancient gospel, > particularly as it related to the manner in which the apostles preached it and brought convicted sinners to the light and peace of pardon. In the course of the same year, Alton heard Thomas Campbell. In that discourse, he saw the scriptural plan of salvation. Like Saul, the scales fell from his eyes. He forthwith preached the gospel after the models found in the sermons of the apostles.

> "The alarm was sounded at once. The people had never agreed to hear a "Campbellite." The union exploded and went to the four winds. The people called another meeting, dissolved the covenant and each party agreed to support its own meeting.
> "Alton kept up his appointments. Four or five were baptized this season. In 1830-1, some others were converted. In 1832, Bro. Alton preached half the time and began to attend regularly to the Lord's supper. They were now meeting in a schoolhouse, where they continued several years.
> "In 1836, Bro. Alton moved to DeKalb County, Indiana. There he displayed the same zeal which had warmed his own heart and melted the hearts of others. Suffering all the hardships of pioneer life in a densely wooded country, contending with marsh and miasma, he still found time to preach the gospel and plant churches."

In a sketch found in the history of the church by R. G. Coburn, we find that after about ten years Brother Alton moved to Michigan, but later came back to Indiana where he died. His last home was on the banks of the Wabash where he and his wife lie buried. They died only a few days apart in 1847. Of a natural rugged constitution, the incessant labors for the gospel in connection with farming to support himself and family, undermined his constitution. Although he never removed from Indiana, he is known to have made a trip as far west as Nebraska as an evangelist.

As illustrative of the hard conditions under which these men worked, we relate a few stories of his life.

On one occasion, a young man approached him with a request that he perform a marriage ceremony. The young man had the girl but no money to pay the preacher. Like all other pioneers, money to him was almost a novelty. The young man suggested that he could bring a load of pumpkins for pay as he had a fine crop of them. The ceremony was performed and in the course of a few days the happy bridegroom brought the pumpkins.

It is told, on reliable authority, that he was seen on at least one occasion, while talking to a preaching appointment at Hicksville, Ohio, with his feet clad one in a boot, the other in a lace shoe. The journey was then perhaps ten miles because of intervening swamps. The shoe and boot were made on the old last - they would fit either foot. He explained that the mates were worn out. There is another tradition - whether true or not, we do not know - that for seven weeks he journeyed from place to place living in various homes and preaching where opportunity afforded. During the seven weeks period, he received in money thirty-five cents, or five cents a week. The explanation is there was no money. It was at the sacrifice of such men that the gospel was spread in those times.

The life of James Hadsell is available in a "History of DeKalb County" published in 1885. Like all these histories, it gives a brief sketch of his life consisting of various dry facts that leave the man totally unrevealed. Much of his work was done away from Coburn's Corners so that stories of his work and definite memories of him are not very common.

He was born in Broome County, New York, on February 28, 1813, the child of John and Abigail Hadsell. When he was a boy, his parents removed to Trumbull County, Ohio. Probably they settled in Bazetta since there we first hear of him.

He was probably converted there although there is no record. He was already a Christian when coming to Indiana. His wife was a Baptist and whether he had ever been of that faith can only be conjectured. He was fifteen when the Church of Christ at Bazetta was organized. The "History of the Disciples in the Western Reserve" does not list him as one of the members there but does state that he "originated" there. He was probably a member of the Bazetta church and very likely of the Baptist church which preceded it.

His first work was as a school teacher. He received ten dollars a month for his first salary - but he probably "boarded around." He came to Indiana in 1836 and entered the farm there. He had been married on March 12, 1835. It is interesting to note that the oldest son, Byron, was the second white child born in the county. What the feelings of his young wife were so far away from home at such a time can only be imagined.

Hadsell was first of all a preacher, secondly a farmer; but these active interests did not interfere with active work in other lines. He was a school teacher, served in the state legislature and during the Civil War was active in the recruiting service since he, himself, was neither young enough nor strong enough to serve otherwise.

He was a charter member of the church at Coburn's and was the second man appointed as bishop and when we realize that he was the youngest married man in the beginning organization, we can see that he was a natural leader of men. The one church could not hold him. There are several records of removals by letter of him and his wife but the exact dates cannot be determined. Once he removed to Trumbull County and later returned. He lived in Kendallville and served the church there. Later he organized a church in Waterloo and became its minister. At one time, in order to give his children the advantage of an academy education, he moved to Newville and sent them to the academy founded and directed by Faurot there. He is credited with the organization of the church at Newville. The date of organization indicates that he did this while still a resident at Coburn's.

Death came to him while he was in Waterloo, September 17, 1876. He was carried by his friends to the Alton Cemetery near his first Indiana home and there laid to rest.

Once he removed to Trumbull County and later returned. He lived in Kendallville and served the church there. Later he organized a church in Waterloo and became its minister. At one time, in order to give his children the advantage of an academy education, he moved to Hayesville and sent them to the academy located and directed by Garret there. He is credited with the organization of the church at Hayesville. The date of organization indicates that he did this while still a resident at Coburn's.

Death came to him while he was in Waterloo, September 17, 1879. He was carried by his friends to the Alton Cemetery near his first Indiana home and there laid to rest.

He was the father of eight children. These children for a long time were influential in the church, particularly Byron the eldest. Then the grandchildren served but today only one name of Hadsell remains on the church books, a widow of a grandchild. His work still lives there and elsewhere.

We regret that we can tell no stories of his work. Those who remember him testify that he was a preacher who could move men to repentence. Evidently of a restless disposition, he was truly ambitious - desiring to serve his community, his church and his country.

The third sketch is of John F. Coburn. He was born in Ontario County, New York, July 22, 1806. In 1816, his father moved to Trumbull County, Ohio, and settled there in Bazetta Township. The family, like that of the Hadsell's and Alton's, was of New England extraction.

He was baptized on January 22, 1820, and on January 26, with his brother Asher W., was accepted into the Baptist Church which was organized on the day of his baptism. His father, Asher, was the first deacon of the church.

There is no record of his education or even of any movements except that from a paper which is in the writer's possession he states that he was a resident in Warren in 1828. From his son, we learn that he was running a shoe shop there at a later time. It is probable that he was apprenticed there. When Walter Scott made his famous "seige of Warren" he was present. In his manuscript written in 1876, he tells of his vivid memory of the long bony hand of Walter Scott as he told off on his fingers the "steps to conversion."

Thus, he was a part of the unfolding drama of the beginning of the "current reformation." His first reaction was that Scott was preaching dangerous doctrine.

In 1836, he came to Indiana and entered the farm now owned by Garth Shull and the "forty" owned by the Walter Abel estate, just east of the Shull farm. He was a charter member as we have noted.

When the county was organized, he was elected clerk and recorder and for a time lived in Auburn, although he seems to have retained his membership in the Coburn's church. This was in 1837. In 1842, he resigned and returned to the farm. With the exception of a temporary residence in Trumbull County, he lived in the neighborhood until his death although he moved to the Coburn farm on which the church now stands.

His progress in the church is not given. In 1846, the revised roll lists his name first as "evangelist." There is no record of his appointment. It was probably after 1842 owing to his absence previous to that time. In 1865, he was appointed Elder. There is no former record although old residents declare he served earlier in this capacity.

He was married three times. First, to Minerva Trumbull on November 25, 1830. Three children were born to this union. Minerva Coburn died October 3, 1840. On July 11, 1841, he married Alzada Gay who died March 28, 1850. After the death of his second wife, he returned to Trumbull County and there married a third time, on April 20, 1852. His third wife was Betsy Ann Wilmot. One son was born to this union, Wilmot P., who is the only living child of a charter member of the church.

Although he was expecting to return after a visit, he took his letter from the church and again joined in 1853 upon his return. He was then elected deacon and a little later renewed his license as an evangelist. He died in 1879.

Until his death, he lived on his farm north of the church. For a long time, he was a guiding spirit of the church and a friend to a whole neighborhood. He preached at the Corners as there was opportunity and at other points in schoolhouses or church within easy reach. He was never considered a forceful speaker from the standpoint of oratory. He was known to express regret that he had so little "moving power." One of his hearers who still lives says that the best description of his preaching was that it was "illuminating." His illustrations were from the familiar life of the farm. He was noted for his eccentricities and loved by the whole community. His name to all, many of whom were of no earthly relationship, was Uncle John F. The "F" was originally put in to distinguish him from John H. Coburn.

After his death, he was buried in the cemetery not far from the spot where his co-laborer in the gospel, James Hadsell, lies. His final illness came in the form of apoplexy while he was standing in the pulpit "exhorting."

He possessed a frock coat and top hat but wore them only on formal occasions such as a "yearly meeting" or convention. He clung to the "barn door trousers" as they were called. These trousers were made like the modern U. S. sailor's trousers. He had been presented with a cane or two but preferred a long staff instead. His light at night was a candle lantern. At the risk of spending too much time with this kindly country philosopher and theologian, we tell two authenticated stories which older people love to tell.

At one time, he was preaching in a cabin home. He stood so as to face an open door. Outside the door was the ever-present "swill barrel" which contained kitchen refuse for the hogs. During the sermon a hen flew to the rim of the barrel to peck at the dainties floating on the surface. She ventured to reach too far out and lost her balance and fell in. Uncle John F. noticed her plight and said abruptly, "There's a chicken in the swill barrell." He walked out, removed the hen, returned to his place in the cabin to finish his sermon.

In his later years, his hair became quite thin so that flies worried him as he sat in the church. It was his custom at such times to cover his head with a bandana handkerchief of the brilliant hues of the time. One day he arose to preach and forgot the fly protector. His wife sat in front of him much embarrassed and trying to make him understand what was wrong. After a time, she became desperate and went up to him and removed the handkerchief. As she handed it to him, he said, "So that's what those signs meant. I thought my hair was mussed."

Although Coburn was never known so far as his co-laborers, he exerted a tremendout influence in his community.

It would be pleasant to relate stories of other men of the time but space forbids extension here. We turn from these men to a brief look at the land and task set for them. The first group that arrived found that the land along the river was entered by speculators. Alton seems to have purchased some of this land. The others entered land farther away. Higher land was preferred because it could be prepared for farming simply by clearing. Lowlands must in addition be drained and this was in the day before tile drains were in use.

Farm equipment was scanty. Probably a plowshare was brought, although the wood mouldboard reinforced with strap iron was still in general use. Harrows were made in the shape of a giant "A." Hauling was generally done on a sledge. Household equipment was likewise scarce. Cooking utensils might be brought at first but little else for tables, stools and beds could be constructed in spare time. We need not think that these people were content with such rude surroundings. On the contrary, each year showed better material surroundings until a stage of comfort equal to the farm homes of the east was reached.

The greatest difficulty was in the market. Produce must be hauled to the river on a sledge, there to be loaded on pirogues, dug-outs, and floated to Ft. Wayne. There the Maumee River was available and still later the canals which preceded the railroads. This explains the lack of money and comforts in the early day.

With the immensity of the physical task that lay before the newcomers, in our minds we wonder that they so soon began to consider church and school. Indeed, a candid examination of many communities of the time will soon convince one that such concern was the exception. These men had a definite religious and educational background. They were New Englanders in blood and indeed in training for the Western Reserve was a western extension of New England. Moreover, their religious life had been vitalized by a plea that thrilled them to their very souls. Finally, there came with them a strong Christian and experienced preacher who knew the despair that can come to one who has lost his sense of the presence of God. The church was born, not on February 17, 1837, but in the hearts of worthy men at the preaching of some of the greatest preachers who ever stood in an American pulpit.

During the year of 1837 twenty-two members were added. All but three came from Ohio bringing their letters. Thus, the little group was tripled in membership in the first few months. The next spring witnessed the beginning of the work of James Hadsell. It seems that these men were appointed for life or good behavior. The office was purely congregational however.

In 1839, the church became the recipient of property. Benjamin Alton deeded a portion of his farm in section 18 to be used as a cemetery and church lot. Trustees were appointed as the law required. This place is now the old part of the Alton cemetery which is still owned by the church. The original part is easily distinguished by the lack of plan in burials. There are no defined rows of graves. In it lie the bodies of the older men and women of the community.

In 1840, Mary Hadsell, wife of James, placed her letter in the church, coming from the Baptists. Bishops were added from time to time; John H. Coburn in 1845, Samuel Headley two years earlier.

Another feature of church life was the manner of discipline. At the yearly meeting of the congregation, any of the older members of the congregation were privileged to call to the attention of the congregation certain members who were delinquent. Three members, including Lorenzo D. Alton (Dow) were excluded. Two years later, young Alton was restored. Indeed, that was the usual result of disfellowship. This strictness was probably an inheritance from the Baptists for in many Baptist churches of the time there were more excluded in a given year than there were admitted. At the same time, it must be noted that many things were accepted as definitely sinful that are now at least tolerated by the church.

The church grew slowly but by 1845 there was a revision of the rolls and the number was sixty-three; in 1859 there were eighty-five.

When the Civil War came this neighborhood, like all others, furnished its share of men for the army. It is hard for us today to realize how much the War affected the lives and thoughts of those who remained behind. Many "boys in blue" left for the army during those years. On the church rolls five are marked with these words, "killed in action" or "died in the army." These five were: Benny Robe, Henry Monroe, Harvey Ackley, Edward W. Flint, Edward Rupert. We cannot give a complete list of the men who went away and came back but every person of forty years or more has a distinct memory of the colors, firing squad and bugler, and sometimes the martial band which led the procession for Memorial Day.

The war wrought destruction other than upon the bodies of young men. During the course of the great conflict, feelings were brought to a high pitch of excitement so that sober judgment was swept aside. In the year 1864, we find these words written after the names of two men, "excluded because of war ideas." In all, five people were excluded at this time, perhaps all for this one thing. 1864 was the year of the bitter political campaign between McClellan and the Democratic party against Lincoln and the Union Party. It was exceedingly bitter; all the mistakes of the conduct of the war, the highly wrought feelings of the supporters of Lincoln and the seeming hopelessness of the situation brought destruction of the Christian spirit. Just what the trouble was is not known certainly, but since two of the group are known to have been staunch Democrats it is safe to conjecture that the "war ideas" mention was that advocated by the Democratic party, recognition of the Confederacy and a conference looking toward some sort of union with slavery and states rights guaranteed. Of course, the northern victories changed the whole picture and the trouble passed. When we remember that perhaps every family in the church was in some way represented in the active service, we can understand the tension of the church at this time. At least one of these men later became a loyal member and was honored by the office of Elder.

We have had but little to say about the material progress of the church during the years. As we have noticed the church became the owner of the lot occupied by the cemetery early in its history. The deed mentions that it is to be used for burial and church purposes. The original intention was to built a house for worship there but the center of the community was soon seen to be nearer the corner that came to be known as Coburn's Corners. Worship was conducted for a long time in private houses or schoolhouses. But when the number grew to reach nearly ninety, there was a real need for a separate building. In 1860, the congregation built the "old church" which stood on the site of the present building. It was the usual rectangular shape as the general plan of the time. There were two doors at the front end of the building with the pulpit between them so that the late-comer must run the gauntlet of all the eyes of those present. At a later time, one of the doors was closed and a platform was built to fill in the space between the old platform and the wall. This was used for a choir loft. This building was used until the opening of the twentieth century.

While we are thinking of the old building, it is well to pause for a look at social customs of the day. Clothing was largely homemade although spinning and weaving were being abandoned swiftly by the time of the Civil War. When a family reached the church, the group separated, women and small children entered one door; men and boys entered by the other. Some churches were built with a partition running from the rear to the front but this building was never so arranged. In the winter the older men surrounded one stove, older women the other. The writer's mother used to tell how she was attracted by the elder women sitting in an open square around the stove, each wearing a white bonnet as was the custom or style of the time.

We must also relate that some of the men were addicted to the use of chewing tobacco and that some of them indulged in its use during the church service. Floor and stove suffered in consequence. One old gentleman in particular was accustomed to sitting in a certain spot so that the floor near him was stained brown. Those who knew him testify that he was one of the saintliest of men, patient, quiet, an elder of the church and honoring the office if any mortal can do so.

Changing social customs crept into the church. What a craning of necks and rustles of disapproval must have greeted the first couple who sat down together upon one side of the church. Was it a young man and his sweetheart or a bride and groom? Whoever it was had brave spirits within them. Did young men and women maneuver to sit beside each other at the division line - young man sitting sedately on the men's side and young woman on the other?

There is evidence that attendance upon evening service was greater than today but we must remember that there were more people in the country communities than now, particularly the younger people and that there were fewer places to go. Church services were not only religious events but social events as well. One of the great strengths of the congregation had been its recognition of social needs.

A popular amusement of the time was the literaries as they were called. At stated times during the winter they were held. The custom was to use the schoolhouses which would be filled upon these occasions. There were then two schools in the nieghborhood. The North School, or Cheesetown, and the South School, or Coburntown. Programs were arranged usually consisting of music, recitations, debates and papers. The debates and papers as well as other features were conducted for youth and old age as well. Debates followed some of the age old questions or some question of lively interest at the time.

The papers could be of any kind. Sometimes they would be discussion of moral questions. Sometimes they were historical in character. The writer has two of John F. Coburn's papers that tell of neighborhood history. One is a semi-humorous description of an epidemic of the "seven year's itch." Underneath the humor you see the constant realization of the desperate plight of a family stricken with serious illness fo far removed from skilled help. Jonathan Shull preserved some which were serious discussions of moral questions.

Sometimes these papers were broadly humorous, particularly those which discussed the life and particularly the character of some person well-known in the neighborhood. The subject was present to enjoy the discussion. He was expected to preserve his good nature. When they aptly distorted the little idiosyncrasies of the individual under discussion, they were sure to be appreciated.

These literaries were useful in development of talents and many communities are trying to revive like community efforts for that reason. Of course, these are modernized.

On one occasion when a program of like nature was being given in the church, Byron Hadsell brought an organ as an aid to the music. He was thoroughly rebuked by individuals and took the instrument out that night to escape public discipline. It was not long, however, until the congregation had surrendered to the innovation. Today, so far have we changed that we use various instruments and at various times more or less complete orchestras are sponsored by the Bible School.

It was not always possible to have a regular preacher present for each service. When this was not possible, the Lord's Supper was spread and attended to by the elder or deacons. This has always been true so that it has been only on extremely rare occasions that communion has not been observed. In the old days, a "Social Service" was held. Some one either by appointment or chance would read a chapter from the Bible and start a discussion by question or statement. The service was strictly informal. Anyone could talk. The only rule was that the Bible was the authority.

Perhaps these were not always on so high a plane as our memory would indicate but it is safe to say that more than one Bible Class in our modern Bible Schools could sit in on these discussions with much profit. As could be expected, the people were of independent minds. The minister might be respected for his learning and ability and for his righteous life but the people had their Bibles in their hands and in their heads and hearts and woe to anyone who taught strange doctrine. Sometimes this resulted in narrow conservatism but the general result was good.

The next revision of the church roll was made in 1874 and the number of communicants was found to be one hundred and two. Three years later at an annual meeting there arose a problem which resulted in the last case of church discipline recorded. We quote from the church record dated February 10th, 1877, "At a business meeting of above date the following action was taken by the Disciple congregation meeting at Coburn's, DeKalb County, Indiana," There were the names of a number of persons brought before the church for discipline and the name of Howard Northrup taken off the record at his own request and by vote of the congregation. The meeting was adjourned to meet in three months from that day on May 10th, 1877.

"May 10th, 1877, the adjourned of February 10th, 1877 and the following were to be dropped from the Church record." Here follows a list of people who had offended the common understanding of what was fit for Christian life. The story told is that on the first meeting the young people were put on trial but that for the first time they chose to remain defiant. Two of the group still live. Most of them came back into the church, some to take prominent part and to become honored members.

Again we quote from the record: "Record of annual meeting of the church at Coburn's Corners held December 28th in the evening, 1878.

The next year there is the first notice of hiring of a janitor. Adrian Hart was so chosen. However, in previous financial reports there are mentions of payments made to Washington Hart which were probably for work as a janitor.

During these years, it is impossible to tell much about the financial matters of the church. It is known from the memory of many that for long years the pay of the ministry and the maintenance of the church were kept under separate funds so that the record of offerings and disbursements do not show this expenditure. In the earlier days this was very small as would be expected but the church has generally paid equally with those in similar circumstances. If there has been any difference, it is favorable to the church here.

The next year there is the first notice of hiring of a janitor. Nathan Hoyt was so chosen. However, in previous financial reports there are mentions of payments made to Washington Hart which were evidently for work as a janitor.

During these years, it is impossible to tell much about the financial matters of the church. It is handed down in the memory of many that for long years the pay of the ministry and the maintenance of the church were kept under separate funds so that the records of receipts and disbursements do not show this condition. In the earlier days this was very small as would be expected but the church has generally paid equally with those in similar circumstances. If there has been any difference it is favorable to the church here.

No record has been kept of the separate ministries. During the earlier years the ministers who came here were undergirded by the presence of James Hadsell or John F. Coburn, or both. The latter was here during all the time until his death. When no one was serving the church Coburn was always present with his high type of preaching. Those who were called for regular work here are listed as follows by R. G. Coburn: Bonham, Banford, Dawson, Daniel Faurot, Sutton, Leavitt, Bonnell, Sweetman, Teagarden, Oviatt, Jewell, T. A. Hedges, J. A. Thomas, Harris, L. W. Fairfield, J. O. Rose. Coburn's list ends here. The ministers since that time (1894) are listed from memory as follows: John Dunkleberger, ...Myers, F. A. Thomas, J. A. Brown, A. M. Gillespie, L. W. Spayr, T. A. Manley, ...Daily, J. N. Scholes, W. H. Coburn. In addition to these, J. O. Rose was called back for two ministries. During these later years, the church has increasingly appreciated the presence of J. N. Scholes.

On account of the meager records for the years 1890 to 1915, it is impossible for us to give a complete record of the leadership. The earlier groups are listed according to the records of their appointment to the office:

> Benjamin Alton, Sr. (1837); James Hadsell (1838); John H. Coburn (1845); Lemuel Flint (1852); Geo. W. Wilmot (1856); W. H. Milliman (1869); Sanuel Headley (1848); John F. Coburn (1865); Russell G. Coburn (1856); Lorenzo Dawson (1847); Byron A. Hadsell (1871), the son of James Hadsell; Asher W. Coburn (1852), the son of John F. Coburn; Benjamin Alton, Jr. (1862), the son of Benjamin Alton; James M. Milliman (1873); Asa Hall (1872); John Murphy (1873); William Coburn (1889); J. N. Scholes (1889); M. J. Hadsell (1889). These are all that are listed previous to 1890. In the quarter century intervening between the two records others are known to have served. We try to list them but cannot give dates: M. J. Hadsell and I. S. Hadsell, both sons of Byron A.; H. A. Coburn; Calvin Coburn.
> When the new records are given, the following were selected for the year of 1915. Probably all of them served previously: Clyde Hart; Reed Place; Wesley Hart; Saxe Hadsell, grandson of James. Since that time the following have been so honored: Floyd Coburn (1919), grandson of John F.; Claude Laub (1922); Abner Trostel (1922); William Maxwell (1925), he is known to have served earlier but at his own request was relieved of the office; Louis Washler (1931); Bennett Lay (1933); Marvin Poper (1933).

During the history of this congregation three names have been used to designate the office. First, the title was Bishop. Some time near the year of 1850 the title used is Overseer, which is a literal translation. In 1874 the record uses the modern term of Elder. It is not to be thought that the change was in any way official. Indeed these terms are all today understood to be proper but it is altogether a question of usage. This is probably a reflection of a general shift in usage. While in general the office is given to older men, some quite young men have filled it, notably James Hadsell. The office is not so much one of authority among us as it is one of responsibility and trust. In later years at any rate, the minister is considered to be an elder in the local church.

In the first few records of the church there is no mention of deacons. Deacons were selected, for this custom was universal in the church from the first. Generally there were but two appointed at a time.

The first appointment noted is James Hadsell (1846), thus we see that the office of Elder at this time was not considered a lifetime office; Asher W. Coburn (1848); Ezra Dickenson (1848); Samuel Flint (1856); John F. Coburn (1856); Geo. W. Wilmot (1861); Chas. Coburn (1861); Byron A. Hadsell (1862); Cyrus Alton (1863); J. B. Milliman (1865); William Coburn (1864); Nelson Scholes (1865); Asa Hall (1869); Harmon Gee (1871); R. G. Coburn (1871); Washington Hart (1873); John Scholes (1874); David Andrews (1874); Camillus Hadsell (1877); Ella Wilmot (1877); B. F. Hoyt (1879); W. P. Coburn (1889), a son of John F.; Joseph Shull (1889); Charles Tustison (1889); J. E. Dermott (1890). This brings us to the end of the old record.

At the beginning of the new record the following were serving: Ora Quance; H. A. Coburn; Earl Tustison; Fred Hart. Since that time there is listed: William Lenher (1916); Hiram Todd (1916); Merritt Maxwell (1916); Claud Laub (1919); W. F. Maxwell (1919); Meade Baker (1921); Alva Perry (1931); Abner Trostel (1922); Louis Washler (1922); Elmer Volkert (1924); Roy Maxwell (1924); Karl Hart (1926); Glen Hart (1927); Merwin Place (1928); Estel Coburn (1930); Roy Mann (1933); Elwood Hart (1933); George Milliman (1935); Kenneth Coburn (1937), a grandson of John F.

At least two of these have served for notably long periods. Washington Hart was elected in 1873 and served until his death in 1911. W. P. Coburn was elected in 1889 and served for a period of forty years excepting one year when, with two small children in the home, he felt he should be relieved of these duties. At the close of his active service he was made Deacon Emeritus for life.

The present membership of the board is as follows: Elders - J. N. Scholes, Marvin Poper, Claude Laub, Louis Washler, Floyd Coburn, Clyde Hart. The deacons are - Fred Hart, Alva Perry, Claude Mason, Karl Hart, Elwood Hart, Merwin Place, Roy Maxwell, Kenneth Coburn.

This church has not been guilty of receiving without giving. Besides those who went out from the church in various capacities in public school work, elders and deacons in other congregations, there have been several regular ministers. After those mentioned, Cyrus Alton, a son of Benjamin, was ordained and did good work; Edwin R. Coburn, a son of John F. Coburn, was ordained. For many years he served as a "preaching elder" in Mt. Pleasant, Mich. Next, Joseph N. Scholes was called. Brother Scholes served various churches in Pennsylvania and Ohio as well as others. He is quite well known particularly in these states. Since his retirement from a located ministry, he has served as evangelist. He is now living in his home community and is an active elder. Latest to be sent out is Walter H. Coburn, who after serving in Iowa and Oklahoma has returned and is now pastor of the home church. The church expects still others to go.

At the beginning of the new record the following were serving: Ora Scholes; W. A. Coburn; Earl Tullison; Fred Hart. Since that time there is listed: William Lanier (1914); Hiram Dodd (1915); Merritt Maxwell (1916); Cloud Lamb (1919); W. F. [illegible] church can exist without an educational program, whether the program be formally worked out or developed informally. Like most of the schools of its size, the work has been confined in a formal way to the Bible School although at times week-day classes have been held.

It is not known just when the Sunday School began but it has been conducted for many years. At first the school was conducted in the warm months but soon it was discovered that a winter school was also successful. Today the school is graded in its lower classes.

It is impossible to give a complete list of Superintendents or even a near complete list as no formal records have been kept of the school. Marvin Poper is the present superintendent.

The original building was found during the -90's to be inadequate so that a movement for a new building was started. As R. G. Coburn says of this house, "It has answered our purpose very well until Brother Rose came among us but he has attracted such crowds that we find it altogether too small and not quite up to his style and now the talk is of a better and larger house which is much needed." This talk finally crystallized into a definite building program.

The old building was turned a quarter way around and wings added to make the present structure. The frame building was veneered with burned brick. A basement was added and as time went on a kitchen fairly well equipped was arranged. The arrangement is not altogether ideal but is better than many. The house is heated with a furnace. The building was dedicated in 1908 by L. L. Carpenter who once attended here when a young man. His long career as a preacher did not begin here but the good people added encouragement to him. Just now the congregation realizes the need of classrooms and baptistry. No doubt this lack will result in a further addition to the building.

When an electric light company built a high power line past the corner, the church subscribed at once for lights. Later the church and furniture has been redecorated.

At the time of the rebuilding program, W. P. Coburn who owned the land upon which the church stood, deeded an acre to the church for a building lot. The land lay idle for some time and finally was used for farming at the request of the trustees. After some discussion, a plan was adopted and the grounds were set out to trees and shrubbery. The trees selected are sugar or hard maple, native elm and Chinese elm. The plan provides for an outside assembly ground with platform and an encircling drive. The whole grounds are outlined with shrubbery. Around the base of the church building shrubs have been planted for some years. Unfortunately, many of the trees died in the drouth but plans are laid for a replanting in the Fall of 1937. An interesting feature of the planting was the dedication of trees by individuals and a permanent list of the donors is on file.

A few years ago, the North School was abandoned and after a time the building was sold to the church. The grounds are intended, when the need arises for a burial ground. The building is used for a community building. Each Summer many family reunions and also the School reunion are held there.

The membership of the church is not so great today as formerly. There are about sixty-seven active members. Some have drifted away, others are loyal Christians in other communities. The decrease of membership is largely due to smaller families. As a matter of fact, the church probably reaches a higher percentage of residents than formerly.

The church is aware of this decrease in membership. Probably the result will be an evangelistic campaign which will reach farther out.

OBITUARY

HADSELL

Byron Hadsell was born in DeKalb county, Indiana, November 18, 1836, and died at Hicksville, Ohio, May 12, 1910, aged 73 years, 5 months and 24 days. He was the second white boy born in DeKalb county. He was the second son and the oldest surviving child in a family of eight children. His father, Elder James Hadsell, was quite a prominent preacher of the Church of Christ, and was much away from home engaged in evangelistic work. This threw a large responsibility upou the deceased and developed in him a habit of marked attention to business and a sturdy self reliance, characteristics of his whole after life.

On October 8, 1862, he was married to Cornelia Streator, daughter of Elder M. J. Streator, also a well-known preacher of his day. To them were born six sons, two of whom died in early boyhood.

He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Dr. Sheffer of St. Joe, Indiana, and Mrs. Maria Shull of Michigan; two brothers, C. J. of Hicksville, and M. D. of Missouri; his wife and four sons, I. H. and M. J. of Peru, Indiana, C. Z. of Hicksville, and S. P. of Coburn's Corners, Indiana.

In his early manhood he became a christian, uniting with the historic Church of Christ at Coburn's Corners, the oldest church of any faith in DeKalb county, and of this congregation he remained a member until death.

The funeral services were held in the church at Coburn's Corners on Sunday afternoon and were very largely attended. The services were conducted by Ministers Lake of Hicksville, and Brown of St. Joe. Interment at Coburntown cemetery.

A daughter of Martin Zeimer, of Halls Corners, Ind., died Sunday morn- and was buried Tuesday. Aged 24 years. 1895.

ABRAM JACKSON.

Last week we briefly announced the death and burial of Abram Jackson, one of Scipio township's oldest and most respected citizens.

Deceased was born in Motram, Chesshire, England, March 28, 1819. He came to America with his parents when but ten years old.

On the same ship and from the same neighborhood came the Allen family. A member of this family was a daughter, Clorinda, then but a little child. A friendship that existed between boy and girl continued until young manhood and young womanhood was reached when it ripened into love. In the sum- of 1839 Mr. Jackson came to Scipio township, and with his brother and father batched in a little cabin and started clearings in the then virgin forest.

He went back to Trumbull and married the little playment of yore, Oct. 18, 18:0. That same fall he brought her with him, and together they have resided on the same farm since. Fifty-eight years of happiness together was allowed them, and then came the parting. During their wedded life, ten children came to bless their home; four sons and six daughters. They with the aged wife are left to mourn his loss. Husband and wife became communicants of the M. E. church in 1849 and so continued to the end.

Deceased helped to cut out the road now known as the Autwerp Pike, and after the arduous work was done and board counted out, it was found he had made the handsome sum of 37½ cents per day. He also helped to remove the timber for the making of the reservoir.

Many accidents and incidents could be related concerning the early days and his life in the woods, as he was here even before the redman had been removed by the government. During his life he noted the changes from an unbroken forest to a thickly settled and wealthy country. He lived to see the greater part of his early friends laid away, and lived to keep and hold to himself up to the last moment the love an respect that was freely accorded him on all sides.

OF LUTHERAN CHURCHES

Frank Stevenson, Pastor

We are grateful to The News for this opportunity to publicize the purpose of our congregations in the Tri-Township Community. The invitation to do so was a real challenge to indulge in some careful thinking, not that we doubted that our existence could be justified, but rather that we had never before tried to put in writing a description of what we are trying to do as organized groups of Christians. Our official documents have been studied but what is given here is only the personal conclusions of the pastor.

The first statement of purpose which suggests itself is the song of the angels on the night of Christ's birth: "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth, peace, goodwill toward men." This outlines our purpose very well. We desire to promote the glorification of God and to foster peace, goodwill among men everywhere. All that we do as a congregation of Christians is intended to serve one or both of these desires. We meet regularly on the first day of the week, The Lord's Day, to worship God with our prayers, praises, and thanksgiving, and also to contribute money, goods, talents, and time as we are able, for the promotion of world brotherhood through preaching, teaching and serving as commanded by Christ.

Locally we maintain a building dedicated to the glory of God and the service of men; we conduct Sunday schools and other auxiliaries for the promotion of Bible study and wholesome fellowship; and we support a full-time pastor to shepherd us in all our public and private expressions of faith. And to make our ministry world-wide we are banded together with other Lutheran congregations in Indiana and other states to maintain Wittenberg College, Chicago Lutheran Theological Seminary, Oesterlen Home for Children, Mulberry Home for the Aged, home-mission congregations in unchurch areas of American cities, and overseas missions (evangelical, educational, medical, industrial, and agricultural) in India, China, Japan, Liberia, British Guiana and Argentina.

Another way to state our purpose is that we are a fellowship of believers dedicated to bringing the Word of God to bear upon all human relationships from the cradle to the grave so that all men everywhere shall come to desire what God promises as blessings and joyfully perform all that He commands in services. To this end we baptize and instruct our children, solemnize the marriage vows of our young people, cultivate worthy habits of stewardship among those in the fruitful years of life, and comfort and strengthen those who see their generation coming to an end all too soon. This is more than periodic "Evangelization." This is progressive colonization of the earth with citizens born into the Kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ from whom we have a commission which directs and empowers us to recruit, instruct, and send forth into the world new Soldiers of the Cross to overcome evil with good and to propagate the things which make for righteousness and peace.

SAMUEL KEES, AGE 88, DIES AT THE GARRETT HOSPITAL

The death of Samuel Stinson Kees, 88, who lived with a son, George, south of Garrett near St. John's, took place at Sacred Heart Hospital in Garrett Thursday night at 9 o'clock.

Mr. Kees had been bedfast for two years from hardening of the arteries and gangrene developed in both legs. He was taken to the hospital at noon Thursday.

The body was removed from the Gerig funeral home in Auburn to the son's residence Friday. Final rites were held at the Church of Christ in St. Joe Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Lawrence K. Layman, minister of the Garrett Church of Christ, officiated, with burial in the K. of P. cemetery, St. Joe.

Mr. Kees was born July 8, 1857, in Allen county and was married to Lydia Kettinger, who survives. Also surviving besides the son are a daughter, Mrs. Charles Murphy of east of Auburn, 10 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Kees had resided in their son's home for the last six years. Prior to that time they had lived in and around St. Joe most of their lives.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

The American Legion cherishes four great principles: Justice, freedom, democracy, and loyalty. Its pledge is service to the disabled, the distressed, the widowed and the orphaned. The cause of service to the community, state and nation is jealously guarded and opportunity to serve is offered to all its members.

gion is the emblem of Americanism. Americanism is unity of love, singleness of allegiance, practicality of purpose, care of the distressed, the education of children, all directed to the promotion of a common good. It is that spirit of patriotism which shall ever preserve our land from the stagnation which is the death of peoples. As members of the American Legion, we must preach and teach the religion of patriotism throughout the republic. We must not forget our obligations as citizens, and ever must we strive to redeem those obligations. In the emblem of the American Legion there is a great prophecy. It is the promise of the defenders of the republic be-speaking the fullest good for each in the betterment of all, typifying our major objectives: Rehabilitation of the sick and disabled; care for the children of America; a better and more loyal Americanism; and service to the community, state and nation. It demands that the wearer will ever guard the sanctity of home and country and free institutions.

LEGION AUXILIARY NOTES

Meeting Fourth Tuesday of each month.

The aims of our Auxiliary are to enlarge our membership, to include eligible women of World War II. By so doing the efficiency of the Auxiliary will be increased to meet heavier demands for help, for more hospitals, orphan homes, and general rehabilitation work for those so situated because of cruelties of wars.

2. To sell 1,000 popples. This money is used for the Veterans Hospitals, Orphans at Indiana Soldiers and Sailors Orphans Home at Knightstown, Indiana, for general treats, for supplies, and especially for an orphan adopted by our own Unit.

We send Christmas gifts, birthday and graduation gifts, cards and letters to this child. The gifts for the Yanks that gave came from this fund also.

3. Our service sales is a department which assists disabled veterans to sell articles they make at home or in shops. There is no profit to us in this work.

4. We aid in any kind of rehabilitation work for Veterans and their families is our chief aim, locally or otherwise.

5. Last, but not least, thru the Unit's own efforts we hope to help equip our new Legion Home, so it will be a pleasant place for our organizations to meet and that the new members and their families will take pleasure in coming too.

The president, Anne Sechler, extends to all greetings.

MRS. CORNELIA HADSELL PASSES AWAY AT AGE 102

Word was received here Sunday morning of the passing of Mrs. Cornelia Hadsell, age 102, at the Grace Convalescent Home in Fort Wayne, of bronchial pneumonia.

Mrs. Hadsell was the widow of Byron Hadsell. She was born December 24, 1843, at Pousinkill, N. Y., and in 1854 came to Bryan, Ohio. Later the family moved to a farm near St. Joe, Ind., where they remained until 1904 when they moved to Hicksville. Mr. Hadsell died in 1910.

Surviving are a son, Marshall, of Peru, seven grandchildren and 10 great grandchildren. The Rev. Wallace Jones officiated at the funeral Tuesday afternoon which was held at the Perkins & Reeb Funearl Home in Hicksville, with burial in the Alton Cemetery, east of St. Joe.

The son and grandchildren of Cornelia Hadsell met at the home of Mrs. Inez Hadsell, which was the former home of Cornelia Hadsell, for refreshments and reunion of relatives. Those present were Mr. and M. J. Hadsell, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hadsell, daughter Dorothy and son, Dean, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Miller, all of Peru; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hein of Indianapolis, Mrs. Fuschia McPherson of Marion; Mr. and Mrs. Selye Hadsell and Mrs. Maurine Patterson of Columbus, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Van Hadsell and daughter, Kathryn Green of Hicksville, Ohio, Mrs. Wm. Hough, of South Bend and Paul Hadsell, of Flint, Michigan.

Mrs. Inez Hadsell and Paul Hadsell made a trip to Winchester, Indiana, on Wednesday to visit Mrs. Geo. Romach, mother of Mrs. Paul Hadsell.

Port Richey, Fla. 1-25-'46.

To my Indiana Friends:

We are back in the sunshine state. Fred and I brought a good old Northern cold with us. We left home early Monday morning and arrived here at 3:30 P.M. on Wednesday. The weather here has been quite cool for several days. Elwood, Thelma and Jack are enjoying their stay here.

Frank and Josie Baltz drove in today. They had a pleasant trip, they had been on the way about a week, and by the way, this is as it should be, hurry makes a trip tiresome as well as dangerous especially when one pulls a trailer.

The fishing is only fair, but few large ones are being caught, at present. The supply of my "Shiners" more than equals the demand. Tourists from Michigan still lead the procession, Ohio second and Indiana third. They are still pouring in by the thousands every day, also many are returning for lack of housing

DO YOU HAVE A MIRROR HANDY

Rev. Frank Stevenson

Take a quick look at you self,—what do you see? On what is behind you. Your fa is the history of your past lif
Time has written its wrinkl which can not be erased.
isn't a very pretty picture, it? Yet, occasionally yo should examine yourself to se
if you are at your best in phys cal appearance.

Likewise you should exam ine what is behind your out ward appearance, your menta attitudes and your emotiona stresses. They may be th cause of your outward ugli ness. In your Bible in the bool of Exodus, chapter 20, you will find a mirror in which you can see your soul's reflection.
Take a good look at yourself in front of the Ten Commandments and see what sort of person you are. "If we thus examine ourselves we shall find in us nothing but sin and death from which we can in no wise set ourselves free." That isn't a very pretty picture either, is it?

Now lay down your hand mirror and forget about your face. Too much concern about your physical appearance soon leads to the habit of parading in front of the vanity in your private life. Too much vanity in turn leads to the seclusion of pride or despair.

Next lay down your Old Testament mirror too. There is nothing to be gained by staring at mistakes. One sure way to hit a stone in the road is to keep looking at it. Only fools try it. It does no good for God to forgive your sins if you aren't willing to forget them. It is foolish to walk or drive or live looking in a rear-view mirror when there is clear vision ahead. Forget those things which are behind and press forward toward that which is out front. This brings us to Jesus the Chirst.

In the Holy Scriptures we are given a picture of our selves and of God. In Jesus Christ, the Son of God, and Son of Man we see what manner of men we ought to be and can be by the Grace-Power of God in The Word and Sacrements. This Jesus says to us: "Be ye perfect even as I am perfect,"

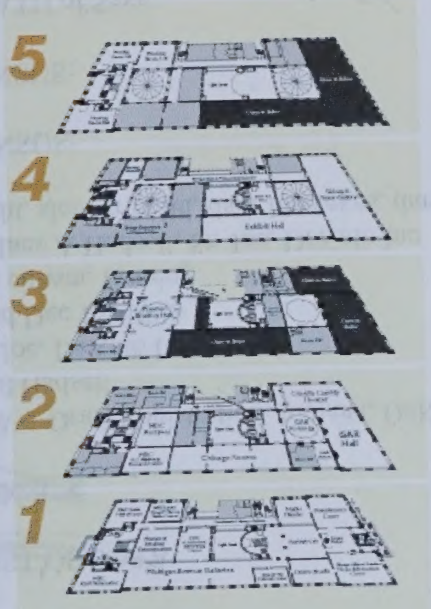
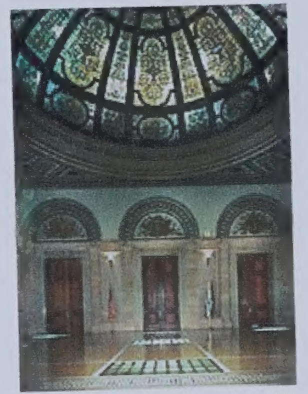
Grand Army of the Republic





G.A.R. Rotunda and Hall

Originally dedicated as a memorial for the Grand Army of the Republic, the G.A.R. Rotunda and Memorial Hall are among the building's most popular attractions. The stained glass dome in the G.A.R. Rotunda was executed in an intricate Renaissance pattern by the studio of Healy and Millet. The Rotunda walls are of Knoxville Pink Marble from Tennessee, and its floors are of mosaic tile into which are set backlighted windows of translucent glass blocks.
Two encased Tiffany windows in the Rotunda lobby are executed in "drapery glass," a technique imitative of folded cloth.

$1000.00 in the treasury and a restoration estimate of more than $90,000, the George Wilson Circle held its final luncheon on October 26, 1971, shuttered the building and put it up for sale.

It sat empty and unheated for the winter, causing further deterioration. The building was threatened with demolition. An article in the January 30, 1972 edition of the Peoria Journal Star stirred interest in the community and a not-for-profit historic preservation group was formed—The Central Illinois Landmarks Foundation (CILF). Its first project was to save the GAR Hall. On September 14, 1972, the trustees signed a lease with the foundation for the management and restoration of the Hall and commenced fundraising with local architect and preservationist, Leslie Kenyon providing the needed leadership to begin restoration. Corporate and State grants were secured as well as individual donations. Among the contributors was J.B. Greenhut's granddaughter, Mrs. Aaron Rabinowitz of Westport, Connecticut who donated $1000.00.

On November 11, 1979, the CILF hosted a celebration at the hall to honor those who donated to the restoration. Uniformed re-enactors from Peoria and Springfield were present and the First Brigade Band from Milwaukee played Civil War-era music.

Since those early beginnings in 1972, the roof was replaced; furnaces installed, plaster repaired, wood floors and trim refinished. The ornamental stained glass windows were restored. The large center window that had been lost earlier was reproduced from a 1916 photograph and replaced in 2000.

TODAY....

The restoration continues with work taking place on the lower level dining hall. The main dining room has been insulated and replastered and the original gas-electric lights restored. This room is to be used as a museum for Civil War artifacts and other military items as well as for its original purpose as a dining room for luncheons and receptions. Past Department of Illinois Commander, Stuart Stefany has been an enthusiastic supporter of the efforts to create the museum and has donated numerous articles from his personal collection.

Funds have been raised to create handicapped-accessible restrooms in the former ladies lounge and clubroom. Construction was completed early in 2008. Funds are currently being raised for

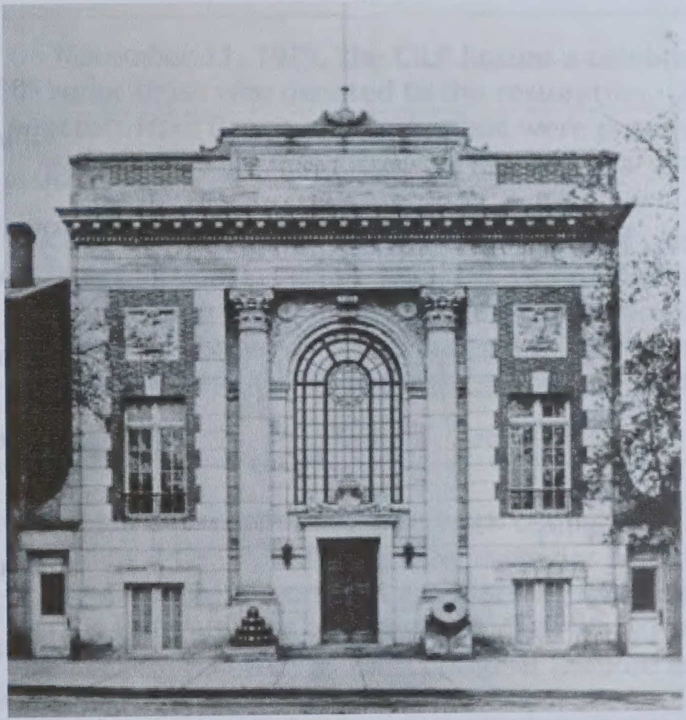
History Of The Greenhut Memorial Grand Army Of The Republic Hall



Peoria's local post of the Grand Army of the Republic was organized on October 8, 1879 with seventy-four charter members and eventually grew to number in the hundreds. It was not until 1909 that the Colonel John Bryner Post 67 had a permanent home. Joseph Benedict Greenhut, a prominent local citizen, who was also a Civil War veteran, gave generously to the campaign for the construction of the GAR Hall.

Joseph Greenhut, a native of Austria, immigrated to Chicago with his family while still a boy. When President Lincoln issued his call mong the arrests were 9 for possession and use of seines, nets or traps, six for hunting waterfowl out of season, and one for dynamiting. The fines and costs amounted to $896.25.

MORTUARY

Saxe P. Hadsell, son of Byron A. Hadsell and Cornelia (Streator) Hadsell, was born in the Coburntown community, DeKalb County, Indiana, December 15, 1876, and he had gone for surgical attention, April 21, 1930, having attained to the age of 53 years, 4 months and 6 days.

October 1, 1902, he was united in marriage to Inez Driver. To this union two children were born, Portia Irene Hough, of Columbus, Ohio, and Paul Leroy Hadsell, of Portland, Indiana, and one grandson, Paul William Hough. These share together the sorrow attendant upon the passing of their father and husband.

The life of the deceased, except a short period of his youth spent with his parents in Angola, was lived in the Coburntown community. He was born one mile west of the Coburn's Corners Church. When 18 months old his parents removed to the farm one mile north of his birthplace, which place the deceased owned and where he resided at the time of his death. However, after his marriage he lived for about eight years on the adjoining farm now owned by Keplar Shull.

The deceased became a member of the Coburn's Corners Church of Christ in 1909, under the ministry of the Rev. J. A. Brown, and has continued in full fellowship with that congregation until his death. He possessed deeply settled religious convictions, and loved to converse on religion and Bible sub jects. He greatly deplored human frailties, his own and others, and was often sad that a closer walk with the Redeemer of mankind was not realized.

The deceased followed farming all his ilfe. He was very successful and happy in his vocation until he was overtaken by ill health. For many years his activities have been limited by physical inabilities which could not be overcome, and from which he has suffered more than his friends and neighbors can know. But now he rests, and we pause to say farewell.

  Farewell, our father,,
Rest with your friends.
  Our world grows small
Shut in with timely ends.
  Our suns all set
And all our days are done,
  But sunless light and life are

Your day has just begun.

The funeral services were held on last Wednesday afternoon from the Coburn's Corners Church with Rev. J. O. Rose of Angola and Rev. J. N. Schles, officiating. Burial in Alton cemetery our interests and the report of the Literary Digest poll has made things wet for the instant but when men who know and can remember ancient history can plainly see how disastrous a return to the old days would be. Conditions have changed in the meantime.

No longer can we trust a boozy nation to turn the wheels of industry and transportation without catastrophic results. This attitude of the Ford company looks like an abridgment of the personal liberty or the running of the private affairs of the individual from the surface, but Mr. Ford makes it plain that a person does not necessarily have to work for him if he don'twant to and at the same time proclaims his right to hire sober men if he wants to. He figures that there are enough dry men in the country to run his plant and he can get them to work for him and if other industrial plants want to hire the other class

Fish and Game Club Information

Fisheries: On April 1st, four crews began the work of extermin- undesirable fish in lakes, ions at Bass lake, Winona lake, Sylvan lake and Wahob lake, respectively. Weather coditions were unfavorable at most of the stations, but the results more than justified the early start at Sylvan lake, where large catches were made of dogfish, gar and carp.

The Riverside and Tri-Lakes hatcheries have finished the hatch of yellow perch eggs procured partly from our own hatcheries and partly from commercial fishermen in Michigan. These same hatcheries are now running 244 quarts of pike-perch eggs procured in Michigan through the courtesy of commercial fishermen and the Department of Conservation of that state.

Spawning grounds where in fishing is prohibited until July 1, have been staked off in parts of the following lakes: Wawasee, Center, Simonton, Bass, North and South Pine, Stone (Laporte county) Stone (Lagrange county,) Long (Wabash county,) and Bruce.

A record number, 1892 of applications for fish for stocking purposes was received by the Division for the season. The time for filing these applications expired April 1.

The season will close May 1 for the taking of black bass, silver bass, bluegills, yellow perch, pike, pickerel, rock-bass, redeared sunfish, pike-perch and crappie. Observance of this law is urgently requested of the public for the protection of the nesting fishes.

Game Reserve: At the Brown County State Game Reserve, turkeys and pheasants have been laying, and a few eggs already have been set. Planting of evergreen trees in this reserve as well as in the Jasper Pulaski reserve have been completed.

Division Employes: Recent employment of the following in the division has been announced: Game warden service: Herschel Corbin Princeton; W. H. Everson, Richmond; Clarence C. Geyer, South Bend; A. E. Holstine, Evansville; James Marquess, Russellville; Floyd A. McCally, Winamac; Henry W. Moesch, Indianapolis; Harold A. Perley, Angola; Roy Rohrabaugh, Lafayette; Jas. Staton, Washington.

Fisheries service: Lewis Harding, Karl Topp and G. W. Lawrence, on crews removing undesirable fish; Hans C. Hansen and Abb Enyeart, hatcheries.

Game reserve: Hobert Miller.

Warden Service: In the month of March the wardens made 37 arrests, resulting in 31 convictions. Five prosecutions are pending and one was dismissed. Among the arrests were 9 for possession and use of seines, nets or traps, six for hunting waterfowl out of season, and one for dynamiting. The fines and costs amounted to $896.25.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Reichter, of west of Chicago, are here the guests of the Thornton home for the week, arriving Monday.

COMPLETING PLANS FOR BIBLE SCHOOL

Perhaps one of the most enjoyable and profitable vacations spent by the children, is that of the Vacation Bible School, which will begin at the school house on Monday morning of next week.

Completion of the details will be made this week, when the officers and teachers will talk the plans over together.

Every parent is asked to support the school, by sending their children and encourage the officers by having regular attendance at each morning session.

The school will be financed by the co-operating churches of the township, paying $1.00 to the school for each pupil registered, that is enrolled in their school. In fact every child is asked to attend whether enrolled in any of the township Sunday Schools or not.

Hollis Dilley will have charge of the transportation and each school will enlist its autos to assist in hauling the children to and from school.

Those who have the registration, will call on the parents by Sunday if enrollment has not already been made.

FORD PUTS "FIRST THINGS FIRST"

In a recent statement made by Harry W. Bennett, of the Ford private police force, it was made very plain just what Henry Ford thinks of the liquor business in relation to industry—especially his industry. Mr. Bennett says, "On orders of the Ford Motor Company" every employee of the company who is found drinking, either in his home or in a Dearborn speakeasy, will be discharged immediately. This order will be carried out in the Ford plant in or near Berlin, Germany, although the order to drink elsewhere besides the Ford plant will meet with no opposition from the company. But in the United States more rigidity will be shown. Carl A. Brooks, Dearborn Police Chief said that if any Ford employees were taken in raids that they would be reported to the company for dismissal.

The recent wet drive of the liquor interests and the report of the Literary Digest poll has made things wet for the instant but when men who know and can remember ancient history can plainly see how disastrous a return to the old days would be. Conditions have changed in the meantime.

No longer can we trust a boozy nation to turn the wheels of industry and transportation without catastrophic results. This attitude of the Ford company looks like an abridgment of the personal liberty or the running of the private affairs of the individual from the surface, but Mr. Ford makes it plain that a person does not necessarily have to work for him if he don't want to and at the same time proclaims his right to hire sober men if he wants to. He figures that there are enough dry men in the country to run his plant and he can get them to work for him and if other industrial plants want to hire the other class of labor that is alright with him. The Ford Motor Company has sought to influence any employee against his own will but simply stipulates its own policy and sticks to it.

Safety First Was Fine

Those who saw it last Friday night, at the opera house; and in fact a full house was present, pronounced it as good as ever.

As was advertised, the local organization put on the play for the benefit of the St. Joe Volunteer Fire Co., to assist them in the purchase of a motor truck for the fire engine. The public as usual showed their appreciation of the efforts of the boys, by giving a hearty response to the play. Because of the inclemency of the weather, many were kept away. The committee has decided to give the play over on Thursday night of this week.

The personnel of the company will be found in the ad on another page of this paper, and each one was especially adapted to his character. The receipts of the show was $103.35.

Thieves Visit St. Joe

Wednesday morning, broken windows revealed the fact that some burglars had been at work during the night.

Three stores were broken into as follows:—Wm. Curie's implement store was entered through the west window. Every drawer was searched and papers laid on the floor, robes and blankets disturbed. What was taken is not known. They left the store at the rear.

The glass in Dr. Sheffer's front door was broken but no entrance gained.

John Betz restaurant, was the third. Entrance was gained at a window on the east side. John is the looser of some eggs, canned goods, cheese, sandwiches, perhaps some cigars and many other things. Papers were scattered over the floor His loss will be considerable.

Henry Krabill reports that he heard the noise, but thought it caused by a train passing at that time and did not investigate.

The Wm. Sailor Blood-hound of Hicksville was secured and landed in St. Joe at 11:41. The scent was taken from the Curie store, down main Street, into the Kees creek bottom and then north, across the tracks where, it is supposed that the thieves drove away. The second trail was taken from the Betz restraurant and ended about the same place.

Farmers Take Notice

Did you ever stop to think you are doing yourself an injustice, as well as the Flour Mill in your locality, by buying flour that is made in Kansas or Minnesota or some other far off place? When you buy a foreign flour, you help to break down a very valuabe industry in your community. Your flour costs you more than if you would take your wheat to the mill, and get flour it. And then you want to get bran and middlings for feed, you do not want the western bran and feed because you do not like it and your stock does not like it. You like the feed you get at the home mill the best.

If you were as patriotic to your home community as you should be you would patronize your home mill, you would use your home flour as well as you would like to use the home mill feed. You should realize that the community mill needs your wheat and flour trade as well as the chop grinding trade. Your home mill cannot continue in business very long unless it gets your full patronage. Our mill has been endeavoring to serve the farmers well, we have not spared expense in equipment to make this one of the best mills in the country. We have made an effort to favor the farmers in this community by keeping all our mill feed for our local trade, but unless the farmers favor us by bringing their wheat here for flour we will be forced to hold our feed and sell to feed dealers who will buy our flour if we will furnish them with feed.

This is the terms on which foreign

Takes His Life.

Friday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock Charles Hadsell ended his own life at his home on Tight street near the corporate limits.

Mr. Hadsell has for years been more or less of an eccentric character. For some time he has had in mind disposing of his interests here and moving to Delaware or New Jersey. Tuesday he sold his property to Mrs Susie Scott of West High street. After the sale was made he began brooding over the situation and wished the deal had not been made. It is reported that he offered a bonus to cancel the deal but failed in this.

He continued to brood over the situation and no doubt felt that there was no way out of the dilemma. This in turn unbalanced his mind. He is reported to have suggested suicide during the morning but it was not taken seriously.

The weapon used was a short 32 calibre rifle. The shot entered the forehead and death must have been instantaneous. He was upstairs in his own room when the deed was committed.

For several years he has resided with his aged mother. She heard nothing of him and went up to his room where she found him dead.

Mr. Hadsell came from pioneer stock of this section. His father was the first white child born in DeKalb county, Ind.—Hicksville News.

Charles Zealous Hadsell was born at Coburn's Corners, Indiana, March 15, 1874.

He lived with his family on the farm there until he was thirty years of age when he came with his father and mother to the home at Hicksville, Ohio, where he resided until his death, February 14, 1919.

In his young manhood he united with the church at Coburn's Corners. The interpretation of his character was best revealed in his care, kindness and consideration for his aged mother with whom he lived. Besides his mother, three brothers survive Irvin S., of Hicksville, Ohio, Saxe P., of near St. Joe and Marshall J. Indianapolis, Indiana.

He was very fond of music and derived much pleasure from his association with the choir in the work of the church.

The funeral was held from the Christian church at Hicksville on Monday afternoon at 1:30. Conducted by Rev. Morr. Burial at Alton cemetery.

WHAT HAPPENS AFTER A GRANT IS AWARDED?

Notification of your grant award

All applicants will be notified in writing of grant decisions after the Commission meets and approves the grants (June 2003). Grantees will receive packets containing an award letter, a Grant Agreement, an IRS W-9 form, and other pertinent materials that must be completed, signed and returned to the IAC before the grantee's first payment can be processed.

Acknowledgment and credit of public funding

All grantees MUST credit the Indiana Arts Commission and the National Endowment for the Arts for their support in ALL publicity and printed materials related to the funded project. Logos and credit lines must be included in a prominent location and type size. The IAC will provide you with logo sheets. The credit line for activities receiving funding should read: "Provided with support from the Indiana Arts Commission, a state agency, and the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency."

Grant Agreement

The Grant Agreement is your official contract with the Indiana Arts Commission. Read this document carefully as you will be responsible for meeting all the terms and conditions it contains. You must sign and return your Grant Agreement and W-9 form to the IAC immediately. Your signed Grant Agreement will be reviewed by three other state agencies – the Department of Administration, the Budget Agency, and the Attorney General's office. (This is standard procedure). When all state official signatures have been affixed to the document, a copy of the fully executed agreement will be sent to you. The original is kept on file at the Indiana Arts Commission. The IAC will not recognize any contractual obligation to an individual without a fully executed copy of the Grant Agreement on file.

IRS W-9 form

All grantees must fill out this form to provide the State of Indiana with your Social Security Number. The completed form must be completed and signed by the grantee and returned to the Indiana Arts Commission.

First grant payment

The first payment of your grant will be for 75 percent of the total award. The payment will be mailed to you after your Grant Agreement has been approved by all three State agencies. In general, it takes two months from the time you submit your correctly completed Grant Agreement and IRS W-9 form until the IAC mails your first payment.

Changes to the project

During the period of your grant, you must notify the IAC in writing of any major changes that may affect the funded project. These include changes in budget, personnel, dates, scope of activities, etc. IAC staff will review your changes before giving written approval. Changes that significantly alter the scope of intention of the project will not be approved. You may be required to return all or a portion of your grant money to the IAC.

Final Grant Report

All grantees must submit a completed Final Grant Report one month following the grant's ending date, or by July 31, 2004, whichever comes first. The deadline for submitting the final report will be identified in your Grant Agreement. The Final Grant Report form will be mailed to you in your grant notification packet. You should read through the report before you begin so you will know the type of information you will be asked to supply at the end of your project. You will not automatically be mailed another form, so place this somewhere where you will have access to it when your project has ended and it is time to submit the Final Report.

Records retention

Adequate records need to be maintained to substantiate all financial and program information reported to the IAC for a period of no fewer than three years.

nesday and Thursday of last week.

Roy Blackburn was in the neighborhood last Thursday, soliciting for the new Christian church at Maysville.

Winifred Hart and son Glen, left Tuesday morning for Fremont Center where she will make an extended visit with parents and friends.

Miss Nellie Blackburn of Maysville, and Mrs. O'Neill of Marion, were guests at the home of I. S. Hadsell, a part of last week

Rev. Davis, a preacher who is known to our older people, preached at this place, Sunday evening. He is working in this state in the interest of Christian Orphanages and old peoples' homes.

Christopher and Will Gee of eastern Ohio, were called here by the serious illness of their brother, Sherman. They arrived about three hours before his death. They will remain a few days to visit with relatives.

The friends and neighbors of Romeo Headley made him a wood-bee last Thursday and prepared about fifteen cords of wood for his winter's use. He has been quite ill for some time, but is now able to ride about.

Son Lost Mother.

Consumption runs in our family, and through it I lost my mother", writes E. B. Reid, of Harmony, Me. "For the past five years, however, on the slightest sign of a Cough or Cold, I have taken Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which has saved me from serious lung trouble." His mother's death was a serious loss for Mr. Reid, but he learned that lung trouble must not be neglected, and how to cure it. Quickest relief and cure for coughs and colds. Price 50c and $1,00; guaranteed at H. Milliman's drug store. Trial bottle free.

Think of it! $25,000 for one story! The highest price that has been similary paid in America to any author. And this just for the exclusive right to print the story in this one publication—no right to publish it in book form being included.

Consider the quality of merit, the intensity of interest this story must possess to command this extraordinary price. The "White Company" has ever been accepted as the greatest work of any author, and by far superior to his own "Sherlock Holmes" tales—but "Sir Nigel," says Conan Doyle himself, surpasses them all.

Conan Doyle receives this fabulous sum for his "Sir Nigel," which begins in the Sunday Magazine part of next SUNDAY'S RECORD-HERALD. Do not fail to buy the Record-Herald for next Sunday, Dec. 3, as this great romance by the world's greatest writer of romatic fiction will be the sensation in the literary world for months to come.

"I Thank The Lord!"

cried Hannah Plant, of Little Rock, Ark. "for the relief I got from Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It cured my fearful running sores, which nothing else would heal, and from which I had suffered for 5 years." It is a marvelous cure for cuts, burns and wounds. Guaranteed at H. Milliman's drug store.
